CONGRESS WILL BEGIN ON LAWS AS WILSON URGED

Railway Situation, Interstate and Foreign Commerce to Claim Attention.

Democrats in Senate Solid for Owen's Corrupt Practices Measure Presented.

Representative Flood Proposes Ten Drastic Laws to Protect Our Neutrality.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Congressional leaders today planned to begin immediately the preliminary work on President Wilson's renewed recommendations for legislative measures to meet the railroad situation. The interstate and foreign commerce committees of both the house and senate will meet before the end of the week and probably will take up at once the president's suggestions for enlarging the interstate commerce commission, providing a system of suspending railroad strikes pending full and complete investigation and authority for the federal government to take over the railroads in time for military necessity.

The fuse was lighted for an explosion of political fire-works of the most sensational character in the senate today when Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, renews his fight for passage of the corrupt practices bill. President Wilson's plea in his annual message to congress yesterday for early enactment of the corrupt practices bill has solidified the democratic members in support of the measure.

Senator Newlands, chairman of the joint congressional railroads committee, today presented to the senate petitions from the 80 per cent unorganized railroad employes asking for legislation to give them a share of the benefits of the Adamson law. The petitions bore 300,000 signatures, Senator Newlands told the senate.

The petitioners asked:

1—A thorough investigation by a competent committee of wages on all railroads.

2—The fixing of a standard of hours of labor for railroad employes of all classes.

3—A compulsory arbitration law, such as that recommended by President Wilson yesterday, "to prevent destructive interruption of interstate commerce and binding alike to employes and employers in all controversies affecting wages and hours of labor."

WILL PRESS NEUTRALITY BILLS.

Measures Seek to Cover Some Complications of War.

Representative Flood, chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs, declared today his purpose to press for passage ten drastic bills to protect the neutrality of the United States.

Both the state department and the department of justice are keenly interested because the measures were formulated as a result of complications growing out of the European war, and are designed to prevent neutrality violators from escaping punishment on technicalities.

Some of the more drastic provisions ars:

Condemnation of arms and munitions of war in course of exportation or designed to be exported in violation of the laws of the United States, together with the vessels or vehicles in which they are found.

Authorization of collectors of customs during the war between foreign nations to inspect private vessels within the jurisdiction of the United States to detect the use of any vessel in violation of international law or the law or treaties of the United States.

Severe punishment of impersonators of United States or foreign government officials, or persons who injure or destroy property in the United States belonging to a foreign government.

Restrict aliens, other than diplomatic or consular officers or attaches, from acting in the United States as agent of a foreign government, without consent of this government.

GENERAL ELECTION IS BRITISH POSSIBILITY

Premier Asquith Follows Lloyd-George and Bonar Law in Resigning High Office.

Question Hinges on the Size and Membership of the New Council of War.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—The premiership of England has beed declined by Colonial Secretary A. Bonar Law, according to a report in official circles today. At the same time it was reported that King George had sent for War Secretary David Lloyd-George, presumably to offer the post to him.

The post of premier was offered to Mr. Law following the resignation of Prime Minister Asquith last night

LONDON, Dec. 6.—With Premier Asquith's resignation in the hands of King George, the possibility of a general election loomed strong today. The resignation of the premier had been preceded by those of War Secretary David Lloyd-George and Colonial Secretary Andrew Bonar Law. How many more members of the cabinet have resigned, if any, it not known.

The whole trouble hinges upon the size and membership of the new war council, a question that has not yet been settled. Momentous results stretching beyond the boundaries of England may follow in the wake of the maelstrom of politics that is now seething.

There are reports that the French government may be changed so as to concentrate authority for quicker decisions and action.

There are rumors of a possible shakeup in the high command of the allied armies if certain political predictions come to pass.

While the post of premier has been offered to Mr. Law, the belief is as strong as ever that the portfolio will eventually go to Mr. Lloyd-George.

Mr. Law and Sir Edward Carson, who is mentioned in connection with a post in the new government are both unionist leaders. Despite this fact, many political writers believe that the labor party will hold a more important role in any new government that may be formed than it did in the old.

The suggestion that a general election be held to secure the ratification of the electorate for any new ministry that may be organized is already meeting with opposition. Leaders of the faction opposing the election believe that it would divert the energies of the people from the conduct of war and stir up political strife which might create a bad impression in some quarters.

Numerous political conferences were held today. Every effort was made to seek some solution for the muddle. As the time passed fears were expressed that the problem might not be settled in time for the announcement of the new government in parliament tomorrow.

Premier Asquith who resigned yesterday, is leader of the liberal party. He has been in power about eight years.

Eley with intent to lynch Charles Daniels, colored. James is the first of the 40 rioters to change his plea to that of guilty.

Because he was less than 30 years of age, he was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory and ordered to pay costs of prosecution by Judge Klinger. The sentence was suspended during good behavior and while he abides by the rules governing suspended sentences This was James' first offense, which caused him to be let off in this way.

Jury in the trial of George Saxy at Ottawa, charged in an indictment with a like offense, took the case this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Saxby himself was under cross-examination this morning.

Thomas P. Keville of Lima was the only new witness introduced. The testimony of John W. Beall and John Keville, both of Lima, was read from the trial when held here the first time.

EGG KING CALLED TO COURT

Federal Grand Jury Summons Self Styled Chicago Monarch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—James E. Wetz, self-styled egg king, today was subpoenaed to appear before the federal grand jury and tell all he knows about the vast holdings of eggs in his name, the fixing of egg prices and who is back of him. Heads of all the large storage houses of the city and of the produce departments of the packing houses also have been summoned by the grand jury.

The grand jury is particularly anxious to learn if there is any relationship between the storage houses and the Chicago Butter and Egg Board, and also will inquire into the financing of food supplies. Storage warehouse heads are said to be loaning to storers 85 per cent of the value of products which they have in storage. Some of these lenders are reported to have cashed in the notes of the storers for face value, thus making a profit of 15 per cent.

THREE HELD FOR ROBBERY

Arrests Made as Result of Generosity of Alleged Thief.

ELYRIA, O., Dec. 6.—Police today arrested Fred Klecker and Steve Rogers, Cleveland metal workers, and Harry Richards, an Alliance grocery clerk, and charged them with the robbery of B. M. Neil's jewelry store at Alliance, Nov. 30.

Police say the men, when arrested, threw away some of the jewelry and that $200 worth of watches, cameo pins and other trinkets were found on them when they were searched at the police station Rogers denied that he had participated in the burglary.

HEART BREAKER IS IN TOMBS PRISON

Police Declare That Winsome Wax Can be Convicted of Most Any Crime.

Eight Women Are Ready to Confront Him and the Returns Are Still Coming In.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—With most of the crimes on the calendar pending against him, Charles Wax, nee Oliver Osborne, the brilliant buster of feminine hearts, sat in his cell in Tombs prison today awaiting the coming of his victims. A dozen or more will attempt to identify him today as the will-o'-the-wisp wooer who flitted into their lives and out again with a fagrant disregard for their feelings.

Wax spent the night in the Tombs, although no definite charges have been lodged against him.

"We can convict him of most anything," said one of the government's prosecutors. "Informal charges of bigamy, grand larceny, violation of the Mann act, assault, being a fugitive from justice, obtaining money under false pretenses, using the mails to defraud—all these and many more can be lodged against him if the accusations of his victims stand up and there appears little doubt that they will."

Included in the host of women who will try to identify Wax today are Maise Matson, whom he is said to have married under the name of Nye; Rose H. Kayser, whom he is said to have wooed ardently and promised to marry; Katherine Maizenheimer, a nurse girl, whose savings he is said to have taken; Catherine Canfield, Florence Syracuse, Blanche Unger, Mary West and Mrs. Stewart Denham, his former landlady. James W. Osborne, the former district attorney, whose likeness to the prisoner caused him to become the central figure in a $50,000 breach of promise suit brought by Rae Tanzer, a pretty milliner, also will look at Wax.

Several telegrams have come to police headquarters here asking that the prisoner be held until identification could be made. One of these came from the warden of the state penitentiary in Oregon. It stated that it is believed there that Wax is a forger who escaped from the prison after serving four months of a five year sentence.

The freedom with which Wax has told of his escapades in Chicago was entirely lacking today Taciturnity sat heavy on him, and the only remark that could be elicited was a threat to "knock the block off" a newspaper photographer who attempted to snap him

PALERMO IS SUNK BY AUSTRIAN SUB.

Most of the 45 Americans on Board Mere Horse Tenders; Cargo is Contraband.

Crew of Steamer Lambert, Sunk by Germans, Declare No Warning Given.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Secretary of State Lansing today ordered American embassy officials in Madrid, Berlin and Vienna to obtain all possible information concerning the sinking by a submarine of the Italian steamer Palermo off the Spanish coast and forward it to Washington immediately.

Officials here had not received today any official information as to the nationality of the submarine. It was pointed out, however, that Austrian submarines have been operating off the Spanish coast.

If official information verifies reports that the Palermo was attempting to escape when attacked no diplomatic action will be taken by this government, according to officials.

MADRID, Dec. 6.—The submarine which sank the Italian steamship Palermo, carrying a number of Americans, is believed to have been of Austrian nationality.

A despatch from Palafrugell that the ship had been shelled led to a belief here that she was trying to escape. One seaman, reported to be an American, was wounded by a shell fragment and died. Three others were said to have been wounded by the explosion of a torpedo fired into the vessel.

The reports as to the exact number of Americans on board vary One sadi 25, another 43 and still another placed the number at 45. Most of them were horse tenders.

The Palermo was carrying contraband from New York to Spezia She was armed with two guns. The value of the ship and cargo was above $2,000,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Sixteen of the crew of the American steamer John Lambert arrived here today on the French liner Espagne and reported that their vessel was attacked and sunk without warning by a German submarine on November 22.

The attack on the Lambert, they said, took place at 4.30 p. m., about 25 miles south of the Isle of Wight.

The Lambert was proceeding leisurely when attacked, according to the members of her crew. The first shot from the submarine struck the bridge and shattered it.

Without waiting for further shots, the lifeboats were hurriedly lowered and the crew of 22 pulled away. While they were rowing away from the vessel, the submarine continued shelling it until it was in a sinking condition.

After rowing for 12 hours, the men in the life boats reached the French coast, 40 miles away.

After sinking the Lambert, they said, the submarine withdrew and later they saw it sink another steamer and a small barge. They did not know the names of the last victims.

The Lambert was a steel screw steamer of 1,550 tons, and is listed in Lloyds as belonging to the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation company of Chicago. She formerly was engaged in Great Lakes service.

According to the returning members of her crew, however, she had been sold to the French line and was en route from Montreal to Havre.

RUSSIANS BREAK TEUTON LINES IN EAST RUMANIA

Kaiser's Forces Are Pushed Back in Trotosul Valley Sector on the Frontier.

South of Bucharest German Hordes Are Fighting on Toward the Main Railway.

Capital Now Hemmed in on Three Sides; Invaders Hold Half of Kingdom.

(BULLETIN.)

BERLIN, (via Sayville), Dec. 6.—The German war office this afternoon announced the capture of Bucharest, the capital of Rumania and also Ploeshti.

The announcement of the war office read:

"Officially reported Bucharest and Ploeshti conquered."

BERLIN, (via Sayville wireless), Dec. 6.—By a series of new and powerful attacks the Russians on the eastern frontier of Rumania succeeded in breaking through the first line positions of the Austro-Germans at one point, the German war office admitted today.

This reverse befell the Teutons in the sector of the Trotosul valley. The Austro-Germans fell back to fortified second line positions where the Russians were repulsed.

Elsewhere on the long Rumanian battle line the Teutons were successful, pushing forward on three sides of Bucharest.

Austro-Hungarian troops captured the town of Sinaia last night.

Sinaia lies south of Tomos Pass, on the southern fringe of the Transylvanian Alps.

North of Bucharest Von Mackensen's Austro-German forces are fighting their way towards the Bucharest - Ploeshti - Kimpina railroad. This is one of the two railway avenues of retreat open to the Russo-Rumanian garrison in Bucharest.

Soth of Bucharest the Danube army has driven the Russo-Rumanian forces from the towns they still held on the southern bank of the Arjeshu river.

The official report says that this army is "advancing towards Bucharest."

In southwestern Wallachia the Rumanian forces are retreating in confusion.

The capture of more than 6,000 additional prisoners is reported.

BUCHAREST NEARS FALL.

Germans Hold Half of Ferdinand's Kingdom in Grasp.

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—Bucharest, the Rumanian capital, is now surrounded on three sides by the German allies and Field Marshal Von Mackensen is striving desperately to make the circle complete and cut off the retreat of the Russo-Rumanian army defending the fortress.

About one-half of the ill-fated kingdom of Ferdinand is now dominated by the German allies including the richest and most fertile part of the nation.

There is no slackening of the Russian effort to save the kingdom but the blow of the Muscovites apparently came too late.

Military critics believe that it is now a matter of days only until the Austro-German and Bulgar Turkish armies of Von Mackensen will be in a position to strike at the flank and rear of the Russian troops in the eastern part of the Transylvanian Alps and the Carpathians.

The Austro-German forces north of Bucharest that cut the Bucharest-Tirgovistea railroad are now driving on Ploeshti, another important railroad town.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—If the German allies are victorious in Rumania, their next blow will be struck in Southern Albania and Macedonia, according to an Amsterdam despatch to the Times today. This despatch quotes a message from Sofia as saying that after Bucharest is taken the central powers will capture Avalona, in Albania, and join hands with the Greeks.

The foregoing despatch indicates that the central powers expect Greece to declare war against the allies.

ELYRIA, O, Dec 6—Police today arrested Fred Klecker and Steve Rogers, Cleveland metal workers, and Harry Richards, an Alliance grocery clerk, and charged them with the robbery of B M Noll's jewelry store at Alliance, Nov. 30.

The arrests developed as the result of the generosity of Richards, who, police say, met an Alliance railroad man on the street and presented him with a gold watch. The Alliance man, familiar with the robbery, tipped off the police. Officers from Alliance are expected here tonight.

Police say the men, when arrested, threw away some of the jewelry and that $200 worth of watches, cameo pins and other trinkets were found on them when they were searched at the police station Rogers denied that he had participated in the burglary.

"I met Richards and Klecker in Cleveland, they told me about the robbery and invited me to go with them to Toledo, where $600 of the loot had been expressed in a suitcase," Rogers said, according to the police. The suitcase was located in a Toledo express office today

Police Declare That Winsome Wax Can be Convicted of Most Any Crime.

Eight Women Are Ready to Confront Him and the Returns Are Still Coming In.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—With most of the crimes on the calendar pending against him, Charles Wax, nee Oliver Osborne, the brilliant buster of feminine hearts, sat in his cell in Tombs prison today awaiting the coming of his victims. A dozen or more will attempt to identify him today as the will-o'-the-wisp wooer who flitted into their lives and out again with a fagrant disregard for their feelings.

Wax spent the night in the Tombs, although no definite charges have been lodged against him.

"We can convict him of most anything," said one of the government's prosecutors. "Informal charges of bigamy, grand larceny, violation of the Mann act, assault, being a fugitive from justice, obtaining money under false pretenses, using the mails to defraud—all these and many more can be lodged against him if the accusations of his victims stand up and there appears little doubt that they will."

Included in the host of women who will try to identify Wax today are Maise Maison, whom he is said to have married under the name of Nye, Rose H. Kayser, whom he is said to have wooed ardently and promised to marry, Katherine Maizenheimer, a nurse girl, whose savings he is said to have taken, Catherine Canfield, Florence Syracuse, Blanche Unger, Mary West and Mrs Stewart Denham, his former landlady James W Osborne, the former district attorney, whose likeness to the prisoner caused him to become the central figure in a $50,000 breach of promise suit brought by Rae Tanzer, a pretty milliner, also will look at Wax

Several telegrams have come to police headquarters here asking that the prisoner be held until identification could be made. One of these came from the warden of the state penitentiary in Oregon, It stated that it is believed there that Wax is a forger who escaped from the prison after serving four months of a five year sentence.

The freedom with which Wax has told of his escapades in Chicago was entirely lacking today Taciturnity sat heavy on him, and the only remark that could be elicited was a threat to "knock the block off" a newspaper photographer who attempted to snap him.

PALERMO IS SUNK BY AUSTRIAN SUB.

Most of the 45 Americans on Board Mere Horse Tenders; Cargo is Contraband.

Crew of Steamer Lambert, Sunk by Germans, Declare No Warning Given.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Secretary of State Lansing today ordered American embassy officials in Madrid, Berlin and Vienna to obtain all possible information concerning the sinking by a submarine of the Italian steamer Palermo off the Spanish coast and forward it to Washington immediately.

Officials here had not received today any official information as to the nationality of the submarine. It was pointed out, however, that Austrian submarines have been operating off the Spanish coast.

If official information verifies reports that the Palermo was attempting to escape when attacked no diplomatic action will be taken by this government, according to officials.

MADRID, Dec. 6.—The submarine which sank the Italian steamship Palermo, carrying a number of Americans, is believed to have been of Austrian nationality.

A despatch from Palafrugell that the ship had been shelled led to a belief here that she was trying to escape. One seaman, reported to be an American, was wounded by a shell fragment and died Three others were said to have been wounded by the explosion of a torpedo fired into the vessel.

The reports as to the exact number of Americans on board vary. One sadi 25, another 43 and still another placed the number at 15. Most of them were horse tenders

The Palermo was carrying contraband from New York to Spezia She was armed with two guns The value of the ship and cargo was above $2,000,000.

NEW YORK, Dec 6—Sixteen of the crew of the American steamer John Lambert arrived here today on the French liner Espagne and reported that their vessel was attacked and sunk without warning by a German submarine on November 22.

The attack on the Lambert, they said, took place at 4 30 p m., about 25 miles south of the Isle of Wight.

The Lambert was proceeding leisurely when attacked, according to the members of her crew. The first shot from the submarine struck the bridge and shattered it

Without waiting for further shots, the lifeboats were hurriedly lowered and the crew of 22 pulled away. While they were rowing away from the vessel, the submarine continued shelling it until it was in a sinking condition

After rowing for 12 hours, the men in the life boat reached the French coast, [illegible] miles away

After sinking, the Lambert, they said, the submarine withdrew and later they saw it sink another steamer and a small barge. They did not know the names of the last victims

The Lambert was a steel screw steamer of 1,550 tons, and is listed in Lloyds as belonging to the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation company of Chicago. She formerly was engaged in Great Lakes service

According to the returning members of her crew, however, she had been sold to the French line and was en route from Montreal to Havre.

RUSSIANS BREAK TEUTON LINES IN EAST RUMANIA

Kaiser's Forces Are Pushed Back in Trotosul Valley Sector on the Frontier.

South of Bucharest German Hordes Are Fighting on Toward the Main Railway.

Capital Now Hemmed in on Three Sides; Invaders Hold Half of Kingdom.

(BULLETIN.)

BERLIN, (via Sayville), Dec. 6.—The German war office this afternoon announced the capture of Bucharest, the capital of Rumania and also Ploeshti.

The announcement of the war office read:

"Officially reported Bucharest and Ploeshti conquered."

BERLIN, (via Sayville wireless), Dec. 6.—By a series of new and powerful attacks the Russians on the eastern frontier of Rumania succeeded in breaking through the first line positions of the Austro-Germans at one point, the German war office admitted today.

This reverse befell the Teutons in the sector of the Trotosul valley. The Austro-Germans fell back to fortified second line positions where the Russians were repulsed.

Elsewhere on the long Rumanian battle line the Teutons were successful, pushing forward on three sides of Bucharest.

Austro-Hungarian troops captured the town of Sinaia last night.

Sinaia lies south of Tomos Pass, on the southern fringe of the Transylvanian Alps.

North of Bucharest Von Mackensen's Austro-German forces are fighting their way towards the Bucharest - Ploeshti - Kimpina railroad. This is one of the two railway avenues of retreat open to the Russo-Rumanian garrison in Bucharest.

Soth of Bucharest the Danube army has driven the Russo-Rumanian forces from the towns they still held on the southern bank of the Arjeshu river.

The official report says that this army is "advancing towards Bucharest."

In southwestern Wallachia the Rumanian forces are retreating in confusion.

The capture of more than 6,000 additional prisoners is reported.

BUCHAREST NEARS FALL.

Germans Hold Half of Ferdinand's Kingdom in Grasp.

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—Bucharest, the Rumanian capital, is now surrounded on three sides by the German allies and Field Marshal Von Mackensen is striving desperately to make the circle complete and cut off the retreat of the Russo-Rumanian army defending the fortress.

About one-half of the ill-fated kingdom of Ferdinand is now dominated by the German allies including the richest and most fertile part of the nation

There is no slackening of the Russian effort to save the kingdom but the blow of the Muscovites apparently came too late.

Military critics believe that it is now a matter of days only until the Austro-German and Bulgar Turkish armies of Von Mackensen will be in a position to strike at the flank and rear of the Russian troops in the eastern part of the Transylvanian Alps and the Carpathians.

The Austro-German forces north of Bucharest that cut the Bucharest-Tirgovistea railroad are now driving on Ploeshti, another important railroad town.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—If the German allies are victorious in Rumania, their next blow will be struck in Southern Albania and Macedonia, according to an Amsterdam despatch to the Times today. This despatch quotes a message from Sofia as saying that after Bucharest is taken the central powers will capture Avalona, in Albania, and join hands with the Greeks.

The foregoing despatch indicates that the central powers expect Greece to declare war against the allies.

ST. ROSE PARISH NOW POSSESSES FINE BUILDINGS

Hundreds Have Inspected the New Structure and Declare it is Model One.

Every Convenience and Comfort for Pupils Has Been Incorporated in It.

New Picture Machine Just Installed Will Aid Children in Their Studies.

St. Rose Catholic parish, including families from the north side of Market street as far north as Grand avenue, now has one of the finest school buildings and auditoriums in this part of the state. The building has been inspected by hundreds of people this week who are drawn there by the big festival being held by St. Rose church, in the new building.

The high school and seventh and eighth grades are housed in the building, which is joined to the old building. The new building consists of six rooms to the north of the old structure. At present, 107 scholars make up St. Rose high school.

On the upper floor is located the chemical and physical laboratories, and necessities for doing perfect work. While these are not yet ready for opening, they will be within a short time. In one of these laboratories it is possible for a class of 18 to work at one time.

The seats in the new school are of steel construction, as are also the desks. They are equipped with ink wells and every modern-convenience. Special attention has been given to the interior construction of the rooms, which is of the best and most sanitary, even down to the blackboards.

A perfect system of ventilation has been introduced in the building, where shafts of air, fresh from the out-doors are carried in and the foul air taken out by suction, leaving nothing to contaminate the lungs of the children.

Each room is equipped with a system of electrical lighting that is as nearly perfect as it is possible to make it. It is of indirect lighting. One push of the switch, half-way, turns on half the lights; pushing the switch the entire distance brings on the full current in all lights, and three pushes of the switch-button, extinguishes them. Rooms and their furnishings are so wrought that the average boy and girl will feel like studying and their interest will be deepened in their work. The rooms are not overcrowded.

While the toilet system has heretofore been located in the school yard, this old method has been done away with and modern toilets supplant the old ones. They are white enamel and here every convenience is provided. That for boys is located on one side and for girls on the opposite side of the building.

The building, which is a handsome brick structure, adjoins the lot on which St. Rose church is located, to the west. On the first floor is located the auditorium, wherein is now being held the festival, from which it is hoped to secure funds with which to help pay for the new structure. This auditorium is capable of seating about 600 and is used for social events of the parish. An entrance to it is easily gained from the sisters' residence, to the west.

A special arrangement has been built in for the moving picture machine, a part of the equipment of St. Rose school. Rev. Rather A. E. Manning, pastor of St. Rose, was the first in the city to recognize the valuable results to be obtained in teaching by pictures, and he was the first in the city to secure a moving picture machine.

To The Times-Democrat, Father Manning said today: "Now, with our new building, we secured a new, bigger and better picture machine. We donated our old one to the orphanage in Toledo and our children will have the benefits to be derived from the new one.

"We now have 560 children in St. Rose schools. While each year the parish has increased, I have been compelled to take away from the children in our old school, room after room, until they had nothing left but their swimming pool and billiard table. Now, with our new building, we will have the library and gymnasium and all the conveniences which the growing parish had denied them.

"We have purchased additional ground to the rear of the new school and here our boys will indulge in athletics and have plenty of room for their outdoor sports."

Every one who has inspected the new building is enthusiastic in their opinion of it and the advantages it gives to the children of St. Rose. It is one of the most modern and complete in the Toledo diocese.

SAY PRICE WORKED AGED METER GAME

Placed Under Arrest When Money Was Missed From House He Had Visited.

Local Police Looking Up Record of Stranger Having Hotel Headquarters.

Clever work on the part of police and residents of the west end, led to the arrest this morning of John E. Price, said to have been posing as a meter reader.

It is alleged that Price visited several homes in that part of the city, among which were the residences of Emmett R. Curtin and Max M. Hyman. He first went to the Curtin home, representing himself to be an electric light meter reader. The family reported it to the Ohio Electric people, who in turn notified police.

He also walked into the home of the Hymans. When asked what he wanted he replied that he desired to read the meter. He started into the cellar, but the lady of the house told him that the electric light meter was in the attic. On his way out of the house he took a pocketbook containing $1.50. There was a check on the table but he did not disturb it.

Mrs. Hyman notified the police, and Patrolman Reed was sent on the call. Reed was fortunate in finding Price on West Market street.

He was taken to police headquarters and searched. It was found that he had on his person, two ladies watches and close to two dollars in money. A dollar and a half of this is thought to be that taken from the Hyman home. After a short hesitation Price admitted that he took one of the watches from one of the homes but could not tell which one. He also admitted to have taken the dollar and a half.

From what can be learned, quite a story is connected with the affair. Price is said to be wanted in Sandusky for beating a obard bill. He had been putting up at the Lima house with a woman he says is his wife.

A letter found on his person, leads the chief of police to think that he is not married to the woman although Price states that they are married.

Patrolmen Thomas and Reed went to the hotel and searched the room Price occupied. The search disclosed a bunch of letters. Among these was a telegram which he had addressed to this woman in Toledo, stating that he wanted to meet her at a certain place. The telegram was addressed to Alice K. Williams, and was sent November 25th, which leads local officials to believe that they are not married. Price stated at the police station this morning that she was a divorced woman when they were united.

Just what charge the man will be tried on, has not as yet been decided, but it is probable that it will not exceed that of petit larceny.

He will be held here until officials can communicate with the police of Sandusky.

Another one, written one flimsy paper and bearing the handwriting of persons of by-gone days, was filed, transferring 40 acres of land in Sugar Creek township from Samuel Folk to James Bryan. RED-CROSS SEALS IN NATION ARE POPULAR

Over $3,250,000 is Raised During the Past Eight Years in United States.

Idea Originated With Miss Emily Bissell, Who Toiled Hard to Secure Attention.

Over $3,250,000 has been raised by Red Cross Christmas seals in the last eight years, and yet many people who will buy these holiday stickers at this ninth annual sale do not know how this idea originated.

While Red Cross Seals really date back to the Civil war when "Charity Stamps" were first used, the first campaign to sell holiday stickers for the tuberculosis fight was only nine years ago in Delaware. Miss Emily P. Bissell of Wilmington read an article by Jacob Riis describing stamps used for tuberculosis work in Norway, and she conceived the idea of a similar plan here. Miss Bissell finally persuaded the authorities with the result that on an investment of a few hundred dollars $135,000 worth of seals was sold in 1908 and the great national campaign was launched.

Last year over 76,000,000 million seals were sold, and this year the American Red Cross and the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, who conduct the sale, are out for a 100,000,000 sale or $1,000,000 for the tuberculosis war.

The instructive Visiting Nurse association of Lima is in charge of selling the seals and will receive 80 per cent of all sales in Lima.

Secretary of States Orders Election Boards to Hold Ballots.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 6.—Secretary of State Hildebrant today wired the election board in each county to hold the November ballots until further orders from his office.

The telegram points out that Hildebrant has evidence of irregularities and errors in counting the vote and states that the object in holding the ballots is to permit those who may file charges to prove their claims.

This action by the secretary of state sets in motion the machinery for a recount of the entire vote cast in the state. The step was taken following conferences last night and today of republican leaders and state officials.

PUBLIC FORUM

Ed. Times-Democrat:

I've been reading considerable of late about the "diet squad" in Chicago, and I have come to the conclusion that they are doing no more, if as much as many Lima people. Living on 40c a day works no hardship on anyone in years when necessities of life are not as high as now. We have a family of five and our grocery bill is about $32 a month. We have, of course, three meals a day, which means fifteen meals each day. Counting 30 days to the month and 15 meals a day we partake of 450 meals in a month. I wish some other Lima housewife would figure it out and see if we are not doing pretty well on a grocery bill of $32 a month. And while we are not having any luxuries we are getting enough to keep body and soul together, and two out of the five are working at the shop every day and coming home for lunch.

BATTLE OF STONE RIVER.

In September, 1862, Bragg started from Tennessee with about 40,000 men, intending to push on to Louisville, Kentucky, with a view to the capture of that city and the invasion of Indiana and other loyal states of the north. Buell, who was at Nashville moved north, and early in October engaged the confederate forces at Perryville, Kentucky. The battle was not decisive, but it enabled Bragg to retreat with his immense supplies, south. It was said that he had collected food and clothing in Kentucky with which a wagon train 40 miles long was laden.

During the latter part of the following December Bragg made a stand at Murfreesboro, Tenn. Rosicrans, who in the meantime had relieved General Buell, moved his forces to the bank of Stone river and prepared to attack Bragg. The confederate general, eager for the onset, moved forward to meet the army in blue. On the 31st of December, at dawn, Bragg made the attack, forcing two divisions of Union troops to the rear. Sheridan's men held their ground for a time, but were finally swept back, where they formed a new line. The troops that had been ordered across the river to attack the confederate right were recalled and massed at the point of assault. Six times the southerners charged with the bayonet and as often were driven back by the Union batteries. Darkness fell on a drawn battle. With the exception of slight skirmishing, New Year's day was peaceful. On the 2d of Januarw the conflict was renewed. Rosecrans had planted artillery on commanding ground, which Bragg must carry or fall back. He attempted the first but was repulsed with terrible loss. It is said 2,000 of his men fell in 40 minutes. Later in the day a severe storm set in, of which Bragg took advantage to make his escape south. Rosecrans did not pursue or advance again until June.

Bragg had retreated into Georgia and was followed by Rosecrans. There the confederate commander was reinforced and determined to retake Chattanooga. The two armies met on Chickamauga Creek where a two days' battle was fought, beginning September 19th.

In proportion to the number of troops engaged about 45,000 on each side the battle of Stone river was one of the bloodiest of the war. The Union loss was 12,000 and the confederate loss was 15,000.

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND IS MUCH IMPROVED

John Hays Hammond.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 6.—John Hays Hammond, the New York inventor, who has been ill here for several days, is said to be much improved today. Dr. Thomas R. Brown declares that he believes his distinguished patient will be able to go to New York soon.

Danger Signal.

If the fire bell should ring would you run and stop it or go and help to put out the fire? It is much the same way with a cough. A cough is a danger signal as much as a fire bell. You should no more try to suppress it than to stop a fire bell when it is ringing, but should cure the disease that causes the coughing. This can nearly always be done by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many have used it with the most beneficial results. It is especially valuable for the persistent cough that so often follows a bad cold or an attack of the grip. Mrs. Thomas Beeching, Andrews, Ind., writes: "During the winter my husband takes cold easily and coughs and coughs. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine for breaking up these attacks and you cannot get him to take any other." Obtainable everywhere. m-w-f

ST. ROSE PARISH NOW POSSESSES FINE BUILDINGS

Hundreds Have Inspected the New Structure and Declare it is Model One.

Every Convenience and Comfort for Pupils Has Been Incorporated in It.

New Picture Machine Just Installed Will Aid Children in Their Studies.

St. Rose Catholic parish, including families from the north side of Market street as far north as Grand avenue, now has one of the finest school buildings and auditoriums in this part of the state. The building has been inspected by hundreds of people this week who are drawn there by the big festival being held by St. Rose church, in the new building.

The high school and seventh and eighth grades are housed in the building, which is joined to the old building. The new building consists of six rooms to the north of the old structure. At present, 107 scholars make up St. Rose high school.

On the upper floor is located the chemical and physical laboratories, and necessities for doing perfect work. While these are not yet ready for opening, they will be within a short time. In one of these laboratories it is possible for a class of 18 to work at one time.

The seats in the new school are of steel construction, as are also the desks. They are equipped with ink wells and every modern-convenience. Special attention has been given to the interior construction of the rooms, which is of the best and most sanitary, even down to the blackboards.

A perfect system of ventilation has been introduced in the building, where shafts of air, fresh from the out-doors are carried in and the foul air taken out by suction, leaving nothing to contaminate the lungs of the children.

Each room is equipped with a system of electrical lighting that is as nearly perfect as it is possible to make it. It is of indirect lighting. One push of the switch, half-way, turns on half the lights; pushing the switch the entire distance brings on the full current in all lights, and three pushes of the switch-button, extinguishes them. Rooms and their furnishings are so wrought that the average boy and girl will feel like studying and their interest will be deepened in their work. The rooms are not overcrowded.

While the toilet system has heretofore been located in the school yard, this old method has been done away with and modern toilets supplant the old ones. They are white enamel and here every convenience is provided. That for boys is located on one side and for girls on the opposite side of the building.

The building, which is a handsome brick structure, adjoins the lot on which St. Rose church is located, to the west. On the first floor is located the auditorium, wherein is now being held the festival, from which it is hoped to secure funds with which to help pay for the new structure. This auditorium is capable of seating about 600 and is used for social events of the parish An entrance to it is easily gained from the sisters' residence, to the west.

A special arrangement has been built in for the moving picture machine, a part of the equipment of St. Rose school. Rev. Rather A. E. Manning, pastor of St. Rose, was the first in the city to recognize the valuable results to be obtained in teaching by pictures, and he was the first in the city to secure a moving picture machine.

To The Times-Democrat, Father Manning said today: "Now, with our new building, we secured a new, bigger and better picture machine We donated our old one to the orphanage in Toledo and our children will have the benefits to be derived from the new one.

"We now have 560 children in St. Rose schools. While each year the parish has increased, I have been compelled to take away from the children in our old school, room after room, until they had nothing left but their swimming pool and billiard table. Now, with our new building, we will have the library and gymnasium and all the conveniences which the growing parish had denied them.

"We have purchased additional ground to the rear of the new school and here our boys will indulge in athletics and have plenty of room for their outdoor sports."

Every one who has inspected the new building is enthusiastic in their opinion of it and the advantages it gives to the children of St Rose. It is one of the most modern and complete in the Toledo diocese.

SAY PRICE WORKED AGED METER GAME

Placed Under Arrest When Money Was Missed From House He Had Visited.

Local Police Looking Up Record of Stranger Having Hotel Headquarters.

Clever work on the part of police and residents of the west end, led to the arrest this morning of John E. Price, said to have been posing as a meter reader.

It is alleged that Price visited several homes in that part of the city, among which were the residences of Emmett R. Curtin and Max M. Hyman. He first went to the Curtin home, representing himself to be an electric light meter reader. The family reported it to the Ohio Electric people, who in turn notified police.

He also walked into the home of the Hymans. When asked what he wanted he replied that he desired to read the meter He started into the cellar, but the lady of the house told him that the electric light meter was in the attic. On his way out of the house he took a pocketbook containing $1.50. There was a check on the table but he did not disturb it.

Mrs. Hyman notified the police, and Patrolman Reed was sent on the call. Reed was fortunate in finding Price on West Market street.

He was taken to police headquarters and searched. It was found that he had on his person, two ladies watches and close to two dollars in money. A dollar and a half of this is thought to be that taken from the Hyman home. After a short hesitation Price admitted that he took one of the watches from one of the homes but could not tell which one He also admitted to have taken the dollar and a half.

From what can be learned, quite a story is connected with the affair. Price is said to be wanted in Sandusky for beating a board bill. He had been putting up at the Lima house with a woman he says is his wife.

A letter found on his person, leads the chief of police to think that he is not married to the woman although Price states that they are married.

Patrolmen Thomas and Reed went to the hotel and searched the room Price occupied The search disclosed a bunch of letters Among these was a telegram which he had addressed to this woman in Toledo, stating that he wanted to meet her at a certain place The telegram was addressed to Alice K. Williams, and was sent November 25th, which leads local officials to believe that they are not married Price stated at the police station this morning that she was a divorced woman when they were united.

Just what charge the man will be tried on, has not as yet been decided, but it is probable that it will not exceed that of petit larceny

He will be held here until officials can communicate with the police of Sandusky.

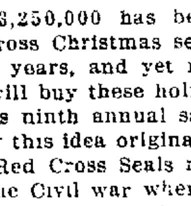
RED-CROSS SEALS IN NATION ARE POPULAR

Over $3,250,000 is Raised During the Past Eight Years in United States.

Idea Originated With Miss Emily Bissell, Who Toiled Hard to Secure Attention.

Over $3,250,000 has been raised by Red Cross Christmas seals in the last eight years, and yet many people who will buy these holiday stickers at this ninth annual sale do not know how this idea originated.

While Red Cross Seals really date back to the Civil war when "Charity Stamps" were first used, the first campaign to sell holiday stickers for the tuberculosis fight was only nine years ago in Delaware Miss Emily P Bissell of Wilmington read an article by Jacob Riis describing stamps used for tuberculosis work in Norway, and she conceived the idea of a similar plan here Miss Bissell finally persuaded the authorities with the result that on an investment of a few hundred dollars $135,000 worth of seals was sold in 1908 and the great national campaign was launched.



Last year over 76,000,000 million seals were sold, and this year the American Red Cross and the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, who conduct the sale, are out for a 100,000,000 sale or $1,000,000 for the tuberculosis war

The Instructive Visiting Nurse association of Lima is in charge of selling the seals and will receive 80 per cent of all sales in Lima

PUBLIC FORUM

Ed. Times-Democrat:

I've been reading considerable of late about the "diet squad" in Chicago, and I have come to the conclusion that they are doing no more, if as much as many Lima people Living on 40c a day works no hardship on anyone in years when necessities of life are not as high as now. We have a family of five and our grocery bill is about $32 a month. We have, of course, three meals a day, which means fifteen meals each day. Counting 30 days to the month and 15 meals a day we partake of 450 meals in a month. I wish some other Lima housewife would figure it out and see if we are not doing pretty well on a grocery bill of $32 a month. And while we are not having any luxuries we are getting enough to keep body and soul together, and two out of the five are working at the shop every day and coming home for lunch

BATTLE OF STONE RIVER.

In September, 1862, Bragg started from Tennessee with about 40,000 men, intending to push on to Louisville, Kentucky, with a view to the capture of that city and the invasion of Indiana and other loyal states of the north Buell, who was at Nashville moved north, and early in October engaged the confederate forces at Perryville, Kentucky. The battle was not decisive, but it enabled Bragg to retreat with his immense supplies, south. It was said that he had collected food and clothing in Kentucky with which a wagon train 40 miles long was laden

During the latter part of the following December Bragg made a stand at Murfreesboro, Tenn. Rosicrans, who in the meantime had relieved General Buell, moved his forces to the bank of Stone river and prepared to attack Bragg. The confederate general, eager for the onset, moved forward to meet the army in blue. On the 31st of December, at dawn, Bragg made the attack, forcing two divisions of Union troops to the rear Sheridan's men held their ground for a time, but were finally swept back where they formed a new line The troops that had been ordered across the river to attack the confederate right were recalled and massed at the point of assault Six times the southerners charged with the bayonet and as often were driven back by the Union batteries Darkness fell on a drawn battle With the exception of slight skirmishing New Year's day was peaceful On the 2d of Januarw the conflict was renewed Rosecrans had planted artillery on commanding ground which Bragg must carry or fall back He attempted the first but was repulsed with terrible loss It is said 2,000 of his men fell in 40 minutes. Later in the day a severe storm set in, of which Bragg took advantage to make his escape south Rosecrans did not pursue or advance again until June

Bragg had retreated into Georgia and was followed by Rosecrans There the confederate commander was reinforced and determined to retake Chattanooga The two armies met on Chickamauga Creek where a two days battle was fought beginning September 19th

In proportion to the number of troops engaged about 45,000 on each side the battle of Stone river was one of the bloodiest of the war The Union loss was 12,000 and the confederate loss was 17,000

Federal Employment Bureau is Proving to be a Great Success for Toilers.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6.—Not long ago, an elderly couple entered the office of a government employment agency in the middle west and told the matron in charge that they wanted to engage a daughter. "We wish to adopt a suitable orphan," the old lady explained to the somewhat amazed matron, "and so we thought we would consult the services of the government."

"Any preference as to color of eyes and hair?" inquired the matron, recovering her usual businesslike composure.

It appeared that they had none They lived on a farm far out in the country, and what they wanted, the old lady said was a pleasant "homey" sort of girl, who would keep them from being lonely, and whom they could make heiress to about two hundred thousand dollars' worth of property. After interviewing four hundred applicants for this position, the matron finally selected one girl she thought would do and introduced her to the old people. They immediately liked her, drove her proudly home in their motor car and after a trial period of ten months took out legal papers of adoption.

This is only one girl out of thousands who have been placed in good positions of one sort or another during the past year by the empolyment agencies of the United States Bureau of Immigration. The demands for daughters are scarce, but calls for servants, companions, chaperons and commercial employees are numerous. There are now 82 national employment agencies in the country, which are placing on the average of 16,000 men and women every month, and in perhaps a third of these the organization is devoted entirely to the placement of women and girls. The government representatives in charge are women, who understand labor conditions that affect their sex and are keen judges of ability and character. For, not only does the government find jobs for its unemployed, but it often directs their abilities and chooses occupations for them.

A few weeks ago, a tired-loking women came into the agency at Baltimore in quest of employment. Her husband had died, leaving her penniless when she had supposed that they were wealthy, and she was forced to seek work. The matron, after tactful and diligent inquiry found that the young woman knew both French and Italian, played the cello, and was well versed in social etiquette, but knew nothing about business. Hence, the matron decided she would not do as a social secretary which requires a head for detail but that she would make an excellent companion for some rich old lady With the cooperation of another agency in the north, the matron soon placed her in such a position.

On the same day that this case was settled, two young girls appeared at the matron's desk and filled applications for employment. When asked what they coud do, they looked distressed and said they didn't know, but that they had to do something They were obviously of good family, intelligent and well-bred, and yet apparently they had no particular accomplishment that would earn them a living. The matron was becoming distressed herself when the older girl suddenly leaned forward and picked up a small brass candlestick from the matron's desk. "Why that's Syrian." she exclaimed enthusiartically, "and very antique—where did you ever get it?"

"How did you know it was Syrian" asked the ever alert government vocational guide.

Oh, she knew all about antiques, the young girl exclaimed, and also had plans of how the various historic periods could be used in houses with good effects. "Very well you're going to be an interior decorator," declared the matron, "and now what can your sister do?" The sister it appeared, had a knack for designing costumes for her family and friends, but she was affraid they would not have any commercial value. The matron paid no attention to the last part of the girl's remark, but called up a couple of business men and a certain prominent clubwoman. Today, both of these girls are doing the work for which they are fitted in reliable business establishments.

Sometimes, a girl will apply to the government agency for a certain kind of position and be advised to change it to something else by the vocational guide in charge. T Wiatresses are placed in candy stores; cash girls have been turned into parlor maids, and saleswomen into country demestics. Each employment agency puts great emphasis upon the fact that every woman should be self-supporting, either in the home or out of it, and that no work is menial so long as the person concerned feels that it is not. Positions are secured for girls only over sixteen years of age, and no girl is sent to any place which has not been thoroughly investigated.

A few years ago, the number of unemployed in the United States approximated six million. Every winter the bread-lines of the big cities were so long that municipal measures had to be adopted to take care of them. The majority of the bread-liners were willing to work, but could not get it or did not know how to go about it. Ohio was the first state to establish a free employment agency with state officials in charge who were authorized to investigate industrial opportunities for the benefit of Ohio men and women. Offices were opened in five different cities, and the experiment proved very successful. Twelve other states followed suit during the next decade, but while conditions were greatly improved there was need of greater cooperation.

In answer to a crying need, congress last session passed a bill authorizing the department of labor to establish a national emploment bureau under the direction of the bureau of immigration to assist the unemployed in the United States. The country was divided into 20 zones, with an employment headquarters in each zone and 62 branches scattered among them. In addition to this, the local post offices throughout the states were used to gather and disseminate information through printed application blanks that were handed to each workman and employer who came to mail a letter. The blank filled in by the worman stated that he desired work; gave his qualifications and the kind of job he wanted. The employer's blank stated the terms upon which the employer was willing to employ; the kind of workman wanted, and whether or not lobor disputes existed. When laborers were required in large numbers for harvesting or building construction, placards were pasted on the walls of the post office advertising the fact.

In securing employment for women great asistance and cooperation has been pledged by the women's clubs of the nation, who are enthusiastic in their suport of the movement. At the convention held last January, The National Federation of Women's Clubs formally voted to assist the Bureau as much as possible, and since then 21 women's organizations have entered the campaign. M. Anthony Caminetti director of the Bureau of Imigration, who is traveling over the country, putting the employment propaganda into effect believes that with the cooperation of the women's clubs the national employment agencies for women may be made the greatest benefit to the sex that has yet been accomplished. Already, women who were too timid and reserved to seek employment from other exchanges have no hesitancy in taking their troubles to the government, which treats all personal information as confidential.

Thus the government is clearing the industrial road for women, and as a result more and more women are becoming breadwinners. Even women who have home responsibilities but are in need of money have been able to secure a few hours' work a day through the offices of the Bureau. With the strength of the women's clubs behind the movement, it seems that the share of the nation's work done by women will increase for some time to come.

SUN IS NOT FIERY BALL SAYS EXPERT

It Would Soon be Consumed if Such Were the Case, He Declares.

Doubt is Also Expressed as to the Internal Structure of the Planetary Center.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—In a paper on "The Utilization of Solar Energy," in the Smithsonian annual report, A. S. E. Ackermann of England, says that the sun is no longer regarded as a monstrous ball of fire, burning in the manner of our grate fires, at a temperature of several hundred thousand degrees centigrade, for, great as its mass, it would be comparatively rapidly consumed if such combustion were taking place. The temperature of the surface of the sun has been determined as about 6,000 degrees C., far too high to permit the formation of most chemical compounds, without which the production of heat by combustion is impossible. Such a temperature decomposes nearly all compounds into their elements and prevents their reuniting and the consequent production of heat.

Mr. Ackermann says that scientists are by no means certain how the sun's heat is produced, one theory being that it is due to radio activity and another that the energy to keep up the radiation could be supplied by a relatively microscopic contraction of its volume. But this theory is not a complete success, as it implies that the sun is only about 17,000,000 years old, or less than the age of the earth.

Doubt as to Structure.

As to the structure of the sun there is also doubt: but the inner portion may be spoken of popularly as the nucleus and the outer portion as the atmosphere. When the outer layers of the atmosphere get relatively cooler they sink to a lower level, their place being taken by hotter layers, thus actuating a continual circulation of the sun's atmosphere. The author states that the weight of an average cubic foot of the sun is only one-quarter of that of an average cubic foot of the earth. The density of the sun being so small, it has been concluded that it can still continue to contract, getting hotter all the time instead of cooler, as is popularly supposed, making it a hopeful future for utilizers of solar energy.

The great glowing surface which the sun presents to us, even considered as a flat disk, has the enormous area of 585,750,000,000 square miles, each square foot of which emits the tremendous amount of about 12,500 horsepower, and the radiant energy received on the surface of the earth at noon on a clear day is about 5,000 horsepower per acre. Now the quantity of this solar heat per unit area, which arrives in unit time at the outer surface of our atmosphere, is called the solar constant, and its value as determined by Dr. Charles G. Abbot, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory. is 1.93 calories per square centimeter per minute, or 7.12 British thermal units per square foot per minute, also calculated as 7.11 by John Ericsson in 1876.

93,000,000 Miles of Space.

"Perhaps the most remarkable things about solar radiation," remarks Mr. Ackermann, "are that it passes through 93,000,000 miles of space between the sun and the earth, the temperature of which is nearly absolute zero, about 273 degrees C., and that only three-fifths of it produces any impression on the eye. It is not until the radiant energy impinges on some material body that it is converted into heat. The best body for causing such conversion is a dead black one."

Owing to the obvious fact that there is a limit to our supplies of coal and oil, the possibilities of the future of this field of work have attracted many experimenters, among whom were the late secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, and Dr. Charles G. Abbot, now studying this very thing in the Smithsonian Observing Station at Mount Wilson, California.

Attempts to utilize the heat of the sun date back to de Caus, who in 1615 undertook some solar work, and include the experiment of Buffon, a Frenchman, who in 1747 succeeded in estting fire to a tarred plank by solar rays reflected from a combination of flat mirrors at a distance of 150 feet. He did this to show the possibility of the legend that Archimedes set fire to the fleet of Marcellus at Syracuse in 212 B. C.

One handicap, so far, has been the fact that the efficiency of solar engines has not been over 4.32 per per cent of the heat value received, while that of the ordinary steam engine is about 11.5 per cent, and the gas engine as high as 25.5 per cent. In certain recent experiments the efficiency of the mirrors and sun absorber was only about 40 per cent, against coal-fed boiler efficiency of about 75 per cent. The author believes, nevertheless that with experiments lasting over the number of years through which the coal-fed steam boilers have been improved, sun boilers will be brought to a far better state of efficiency.

U. S. AGENCY IS FINDING WORK FOR MANY GIRLS

Even Daughters for Adoption Are Secured for Persons Who Desire Them.

GOOD EVENING: Have you noticed that Father is able to attract a little attention at home along about the holiday season?

A much needed gateway—the Wapakoneta road overhead.

Heyday of youth isn't in it with the payday of manhood.

Lima's service department has lots to do with—but there's but little doing.

Some people are so eccentric that they even say something when they talk.

Have you ever noticed that the woman of the hour usually says wait a minute?

It's awfully hard to generate any respect for a man who wears a lot of rings on his fingers.

Almost any man can convince a woman that he really and truly loves her, but he has to work overtime to keep her convinced.

Eggs have hit the fifty-cent mark in Lima. At this rate they will be retailing at about one flivver a dozen by New Year.

One thing about the average cold storage egg. It is strong enough to withstand all the mean things that are said about it.

By the way, didn't Theodore Roosevelt or one of his friends write a book not so very long ago entitled "The Winning of the West".

A Dayton man who recalls having once seen Hawg Creek says it is no wonder that we are forced to get our drinking water from a refinery.

Wonder what's become of the motorcycle cop? Fifty miles an hour is near the minimum speed on some of the outlying thoroughfares.

If the year 1917 gave us no more than a railroad timetable that a human being could figure out we'd still feel that it was not without its blessings.

Commenting on the resemblance of the new dime to the old-fashioned three-cent piece, a Kentucky paragrapher declares that it will buy about as much, too.

The average Lima mother isn't worrying about that old favorite, "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight". She knows that nine chances to one he's at the movies.

It's a little early yet but we are nevertheless willing to wager an American dollar to a Villa dime that someone likens the next Republican presidential candidate to Lincoln.

The Springfield News declares that the man who wrote the motto: "Just Keep on Smiling" was an awful grouch. Yes, and the fellow who wrote "Do It Now" is still putting things off until tomorrow.

It won't be long now before the janitor of a Lima apartment house will, if he carries the key to the coal bin, be forced to give just as much bond as anyone else holding a position of trust.

Just a few days ago 30 coal cars were found in a gravel pit at Edinburg, Indiana. The Indianapolis Star wisely suggests that the coal mine owners were only holding them to be sure of having enough cars to haul their money back to the mines.

MORE ABOUT HAPPINESS

It certainly is a significant sign when trade publications start devoting a bit of their space to shedding sunshine instead of discussing altogether cold dry statistics that deal solely with the commercial side of life. Here is an example, taken from a recent issue of the Oregon Livestock Reporter, and we believe you will join with us in congratulating the editor of that publication upon his ability to break away from the beaten path:

"You number amongst your acquaintances and friends, a few persons whose presence gives you great pleasure—whose kindliness of manner is a constant joy and inspiration—whose gentleness and consideration in small things is unfailing. Few people realize the influence in this world of such personalities. It is just as easy to go through life leaving a trail of sunshine and joy as it is to strew your path with discontent and discouragement. It is a simple thing to say, 'I thank you' for some little courtesy or merely to indicate this by an understanding smile. A kindly word or smile at the right moment makes the whole world bright and may mean more to the receiver than much money. Most of us are not able to bring pleasure by gifts of gold, but all of us should have a large credit in the 'Bank of Sunshine', and our checks upon that bank should never be returned, endorsed, 'No funds'. Let everyone of our readers start in tomorrow practicing this Golden Rule. You will be surprised at the good time you are having. You may think this has very little to do with the live stock business, but it has. It makes it possible for the shipper to come on the markets, catch their ups and downs and go back home smiling. It gives a man faith in his fellow beings and makes him feel that all men are working for the interests of the whole and not for their own selfish ends."

RABBIT SAUSAGE

Without any desire to plagarize at the expense of a popular brand of soap permit us to say: "Good morning! Have you had your rabbit sausage?"

If you have not, then truly have you missed a rare treat.

A plant for the manufacture of sausage from the meat of the Texas jack rabbit is soon to be erected and put into operation, according to an nouncement by the Commissioner of Agriculture of that state, and he makes the announcement as though "rabbit sausage" is a Texas discovery.

Rabbit sausage is not exactly a new discovery, and certainly the making of it is no experiment. Some months ago a party of Ohio people planned a day's outing at historic Ft. Ancient, in Warren county. One lady member of the party suggested taking a rabbit that had been parboiled, running it through an ordinary kitchen food chopper, and frying it at the picnic grounds. Fortunately rabbits are about as plentiful in Clinton and Warren counties as hair on the proverbial dog, so even though her plan might prove a failure and rabbit sausage turned out to be unwholesome, the loss was trifling.

The picnic grounds reached, a stone furnace was constructed, a fire started beneath it, and within a very short time the odor of rabbit sausage was being wafted skyward from the topmost point of old Fort Ancient. The little woman had given to the world, or at least this part of it, its first rabbit sausage. Made similar to hamburger, all the original flavor of the rabbit is retained and, outside the enjoyment of "picking the bones", it has the old and heretofore best known method of cooking a rabbit beaten several city blocks.

Texas may sometime spring something new in the culinary line. But she did not do so when she announced that rabbit sausage is of her own invention.

WRITING THE EDITOR

Has it ever occurred to you that the average editor is as anxious to have your views on timely subjects as you are to have his, and, in many instances, more so? The days when "Taxpayer" and "Vox Populi" indited lengthy epistles to the editor of the country weekly published at the county seat have not passed. Today the metropolitan dailies, with their columns of wire news, local stories, editorials and feature articles warmly welcome and gladly give space to letters from their readers.

Every reader of a newspaper forms an opinion of some kind the moment he or she peruses an article. Often, very often, these opinions, if given publication, would prove helpful suggestions to others.

Naturally, the editor of a newspaper does not expect everyone to share in his opinions and beliefs. He knows that, being human, he is bound to be wrong at times. It is only through the expression of opinion by his readers in the form of "letters to the editor" that he can hope to view any subject from more than one agle, and thus be benefitted.

So, if the war in Europe or the price of potatoes could in your opinion be more equitably adjusted, feel free to write to the editor. If you've a recipe for living a little better and a little cheaper than the Chicago diet squad, or if you've a plan that would prevent a water famine now or at any other time—if you've an opinion of any kind that you believe would interest someone else—write the editor. And if that opinion serves only to impress one reader you've done something toward making a bigger, a better and a brighter city in which to live.

Matrimonial Fables By DOROTHY DIX

ONCE UPON a time there was a fortunate man who was the happy possessor of a wife who was a model of all the domestic virtues.

She was always amiable and pleasant. She wore simple and inexpensive frocks without envying the women who were dolled up in Paris confections. Her house was always as neat as a new pin, and her dinners were Things to be eaten on your knees.

Observing this peerless creature, all of the other men were filled with wonder and amazement and, going to the fortunate husband, they thus addressed him:

"We have got to hand it to you," they said, "as the great and unapproachable wife tamer, but if you have no patent on the secret process, pray thee, tell us how it is done, for we have lambasted our wives for their tempers, and their extravagance, and their bad cooking until we have worn ourselves to a frazzle, and all that we have gotten for our pains has been a spell of hysterics that we had to quiet with trips to Atlantic City, and new hats and other expensive remedies."

"Your mistake," replied the fortunate husband, "has been that you did not know that a woman can be coaxed anywhere, but she cannot be driven an inch. Also you forget that women will eat up praise by the barrel, but that blame slides off them like water off of a duck's back without touching them.

"When I married I found to my surprise that my bride possessed a tabasco temper and a double action tongue, but instead of knocking her for being a virago I began telling her that the expression on her face was so quiet and serene that it reminded me continually of the Mona Lisa smile, and she does not dare now to get angry for fear of breaking up her angel face.

"When a husband bats his wife's freak dress or tells her that her latest hat looks like a creation by Charlie Chaplin, it means that he has to pay for a new one. Therefore, I am never guilty of this imbecility.

"On the contrary, when I observe a woman with an imported dress on that looks as if it had cost real money, I call my wife's attention to it, and tell her what a monstrosity it is, and how much more becoming and in better taste her own gown is. But, I add, it takes a woman with real style and distinction and a perfect figure such as you possess to carry off simple clothes.

"My wife was originally a poor cook with delicatessen leanings, but instead of finding fault with the food I would merely say, 'Of course, this dish is nice enough, but you have spoiled me with your superlative housekeeping, so that my palate will not endure anything but the best.'

"Thereupon my wife would apologize all over the place and get busy with the cook book trying to make good on the high opinion that she thought that I entertained of her culinary ability.

"Follow my example, gentlemen, and substitute the salve jar for the hammer in the domestic circle, and you will have wives who will eat out of your hands."

Moral: This fable teaches that it is easy enough to manage a woman if you use the right system.

FOR YOUR SCRAP BOOK

HOW DEAR TO MY HEART!

I came back to Homeville as proud as could be, and hung out my shingle —"WILL CARVEM, M. D." The people know me from babyhood up, and all my forbears since old Heck was a pup. Just fresh out of college, with gas in my head—

"Smooth slipping in Homeville! They know me," I said.

I met Judge De Vorcem the first day in town, and on my right shoulder his welcome came down.

"Fine, Willie! I'm glad that you've located here, the people all know you, your sailing is clear."

He asked me to dinner next day at his home, but took his bad liver to Dr. Delome!

Then Stingem, the merchant, with taffy galore, came racing to greet me the length of his store.

"Great, Willie!" he said with a watherly grin. "They know you in Homoville, and, sonny, you'll win!"

He took me to luncheon 'twas all very nice—but sought other medics when needing advice.

The mothers all smiled that I met on the street, and all asked me out to their houses to eat. They flattered my uncles, inquired of my aunts but that never bought me a new pair of pants. I was "Willied," and "sonnied," and loved, and caressed, and foddered, and fattoned, and fed on the best, but my neat little office at 23 Main kept flapping its fresh painted shingle in vain.

At last I grew weary of blessings and smiles, and shifted my shingle some 3,000 miles. I left in the gloaming, and burned every bridge; I've not a relation this side of the ridge!" Ah, scenes of my childhood, I wish you the best! I'm earning a good living out in the west! —

ZURICH.

Travelette by Niksah.

Switzerland is not only a neutral politically, but also neutral in matters of thought. Something in the democratic government, the combination of aloofness and nearness which the little country bears to the German nations north and east, to the French and the Italian west and south, has caused Switzerland to become a parley-ground for many hostile schools of thought. This is particularly apparent in Zurich.

The atmosphere of Zurich is stimulating to the mind, with its cross-currents and counter-streams of conviction and opinion. The city is full of thinkers who hold one theory pouring forth a stream of argument and sometimes of infective against thinkers who hold another. The latter thinkers are very likely boarding in some pension just around the corner, and pouring forth streams of arguments and pamphlets on their own account.

Zurich is a good place to keep in touch with all the advance-guards of radicalism. Switzerland gives the theorist a free hand—much freer than he is permitted in Germany or Italy, freer even than he is permitted in France—so long as he confines himself to spoken or printed argument, and does not try to overturn any of the existing machinery of government. In the bookstores of Zurich you will find all the latest literature on social and economic and religious questions that are just beginning to be permitted on sufferance in conservative England and America.

With all this, the native Switzer is himself a good deal of a conservative. Even when he speaks French, he is temperamentally a Teuton, with a Teutonic disinclination to getting excited. He regards these strange fire-brands, who invade his borders from all sides with their enthusiasms and their ideas, in the light of an interesting exhibit whose practical activities do not concern him. Many a gleaming arrow of thought has been forged in Zurich, but Zurich herself is not greatly warmed by the fires of the forging.

BRITISH PACIFISTS HAVE LITTLE HOPE

Changes in Cabinet Are Not Likely to Bring About an End of the World War.

Air in London is Heavily Charged With Rumors as to Make-up of Ministry.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Pacifists who had hoped that a change of government might lead to a consideration of peace proposals see no promise in the political outlook today.

Premier Asquith's declaration in the house of commons that there would be no departure from the policy pursued from the beginning of the war was interpreted today as meaning that a reconstruction of the cabinet would result in a more vigorous prosecution of the war than ever. Apparently there is to be no thought of peace, no matter what the personnel of the new cabinet may be.

As the situation exists today War Secretary David Lloyd-George has won a decisive victory. The possibility still exists that Mr. Lloyd-George may become premier, although there is nothing to suggest at this time that Mr. Asquith will resign.

The work of selecting the members of the new coalition government is now under way and it is believed that the premier will be able to announce the complete makeup of the new government when commons convenes on Thursday.

Seldom, if ever, has the air been so heavily surcharged with political rumors. There are persistent reports that A. J. Balfour, first lord of the admiralty; Viscount Grey, the foreign secretary; Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, and Reginald McKenna, chancellor of the exchequer, will not be in the new cabinet.

The Times and Star in commenting upon the situation say that the question of military strategy played a considerable part in bringing about the downfall of the old cabinet. There are two schools of strategists in the government, one believing that the war must be fought out in the west, the other that it must be settled in the east. Lloyd-George supports the easterners. He believes it stands a better chance of winning by sticking to the defensive in France and Flanders and starting a gigantic offensive simultaneously on the eastern and Balkan fronts.

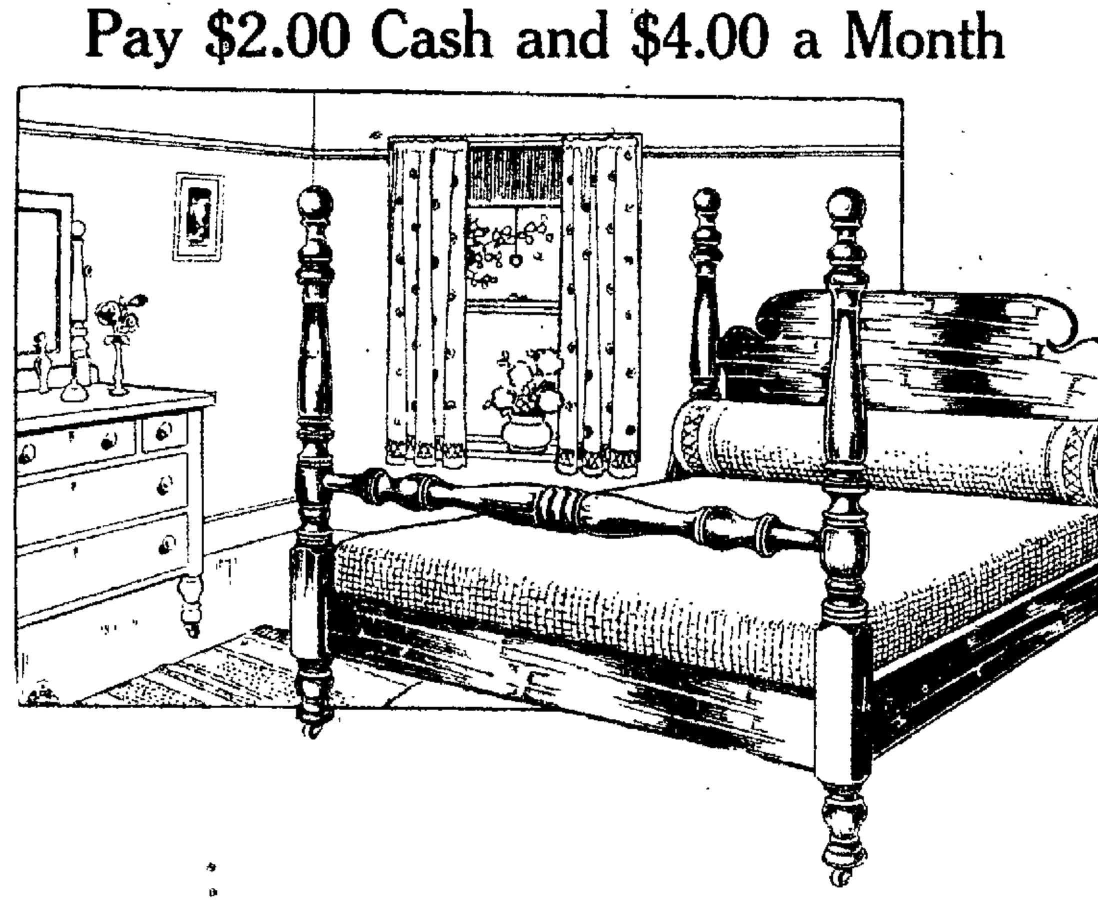
Pay $2.00 Cash and $4.00 a Month



This Design Must Appeal to Your Artistic Sense

Being in true Colonial design, this is a massively built bed. The posts, for instance, are turned from 4-inch stock. But the bed is not so massive that it appears clumsy and out of proportion. The curves are all beautifully graceful.

SEE THEM IN OUR WINDOW.

No, This Bed is Not "Solid Mahogany"

And we don't simply refer to it as "Mahogany" in an effort to leave the impression that it is solid mahogany. It would be foolish to claim a $22.50 bed to be built throughoutout of this wood. But we do maintain that at the price, this is a most unusual offer. The posts are of gum. When the finish is applied, a layman could hardly distinguish this from real mahogany. The panels are veneered with genuine mahogany. That is, they are of hardwood, covered with a very thin slab of genuine mahogany.

Our Permanent Policy—"It's Exactly What We Call It."

You may be sure that when we say an article is solid mahogany, it's MAHOGANY—through and through—every stick of it. And in every case, when we mention material, we tell exactly of what wood the piece is built. We pass over nothing with a glib phrase that might leave a favorable but mistaken impression. If "mahogany" is offered at a phenomenally low price, how can a dealer hope to get a high price when he has a real mahogany article to offer?

Our Usual Liberal Credit Offer.

On all our furniture, from the lowest priced piece in the house to the most expensive piece, we set liberal terms of payment. With low prices and liberal credit terms, we try to bring high-class furniture within the reach of every home lover.

ZURICH.

Travelette by Niksah.

Switzerland is not only a neutral politically, but also neutral in matters of thought Something in the democratic government, the combination of alootness and nearness which the little country bears to the German nations north and east, to the French and the Italian west and south, has caused Swtizerland to become a parley-ground for many hostile schools of thought. This is particularly apparent in Zurich.

The atmosphere of Zurich is stimulating to the mind, with its cross-currents and counter-streams of conviction and opinion. The city is full of thinkers who hold one theory pouring forth a stream of argument and sometimes of infective against thinkers who hold another. The latter thinkers are very likely boarding in some pension just around the corner, and pouring forth streams of arguments and pamphlets on their own account.

Zurich is a good place to keep in touch with all the advance-guards of radicalism Switzerland gives the theorist a free hand—much freer than he is permitted in Germany or Italy freer even than he is permitted in France—so long as he confines himself to spoken or printed argument, and does not try to overturn any of the existing machinery of government In the bookstores of Zurich you will find all the latest literature on social and economic and religious questions that are just beginning to be permitted on sufferance in conservative England and America.

With all this, the native Switzer is himself a good deal of a conservative. Even when he speaks French, he is temperamentally a Teuton, with a Teutonic disinclination to become excited He regards those strange fire-brands, who invade his borders from all sides with their enthusiasms and their ideas, in the light of an interesting exhibit whose practical activities do not concern him. Many a gleaming arrow of thought has been forged in Zurich, but Zurich herself is not greatly warmed by the fires of the forging

BRITISH PACIFISTS HAVE LITTLE HOPE

Changes in Cabinet Are Not Likely to Bring About an End of the World War.

Air in London is Heavily Charged With Rumors as to Make-up of Ministry.

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Pacifists who had hoped that a change of government might lead to a consideration of peace proposals see no promise in the political outlook today.

Premier Asquith's declaration in the house of commons that there would be no departure from the policy pursued from the beginning of the war was interpreted today as meaning that a reconstruction of the cabinet would result in a more vigorous prosecution of the war than ever. Apparently there is to be no thought of peace, no matter what the personnel of the new cabinet may be.

As the situation exists today War Secretary David Lloyd-George has won a decisive victory. The possibility still exists that Mr. Lloyd-George may become premier, although there is nothing to suggest at this time that Mr. Asquith will resign.

The work of selecting the members of the new coalition government is now under way and it is believed that the premier will be able to announce the complete makeup of the new government when commons convenes on Thursday.

Seldom, if ever, has the air been so heavily surcharged with political rumors. There are persistent reports that A. J. Balfour, first lord of the admiralty; Viscount Grey, the foreign secretary; Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, and Reginald McKenna, chancellor of the exchequer, will not be in the new cabinet.

The Times and Star in commenting upon the situation say that the question of military strategy played a considerable part in bringing about the downfall of the old cabinet. There are two schools of strategists in the government, one believing that the war must be fought out in the west, the other that it must be settled in the east. Lloyd-George supports the easterners He believes it stands a better chance of winning by sticking to the defensive in France and Flanders and starting a gigantic offensive simultaneously on the eastern and Balkan fronts.

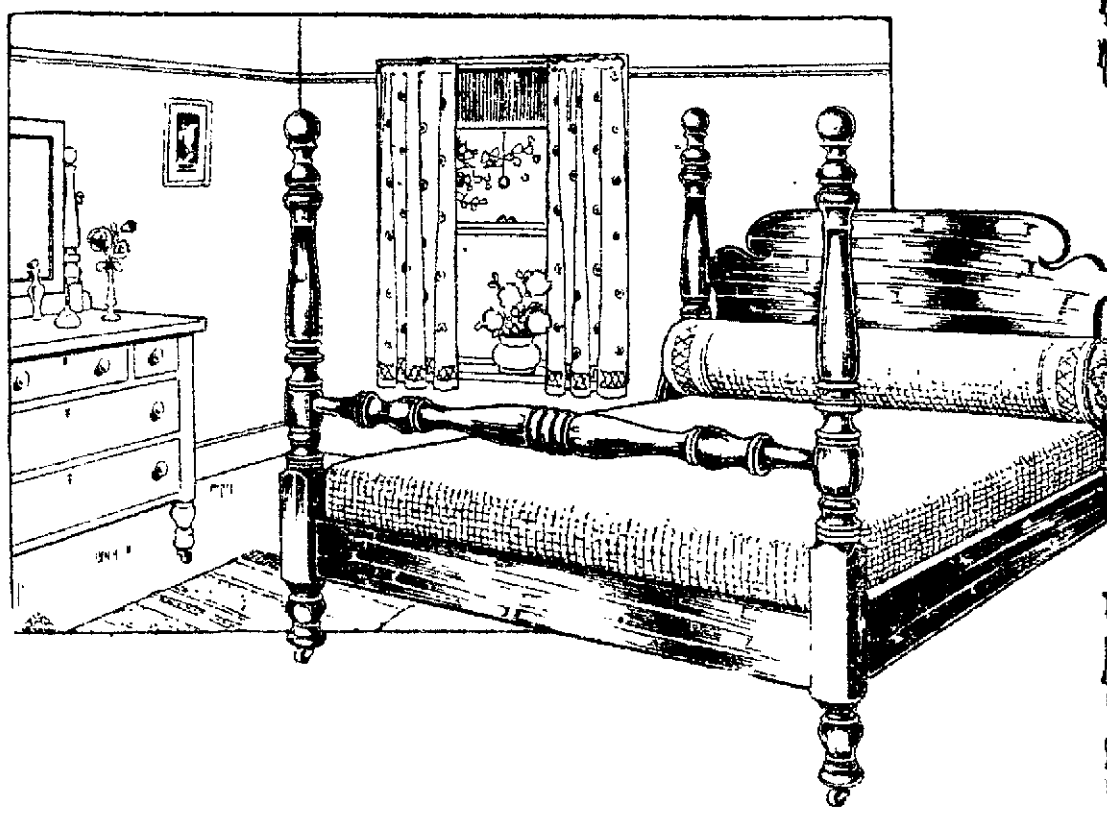
Pay $2.00 Cash and $4.00 a Month



This Design Must Appeal to Your Artistic Sense

Being in true Colonial design, this is a massively built bed. The posts, for instance, are turned from 4-inch stock. But the bed is not so massive that it appears clumsy and out of proportion. The curves are all beautifully graceful.

SEE THEM IN OUR WINDOW.

No, This Bed is Not "Solid Mahogany"

And we don't simply refer to it as "Mahogany" in an effort to leave the impression that it is solid mahogany. It would be foolish to claim a $22.50 bed to be built throughout of this wood. But we do maintain that at the price, this is a most unusual offer. The posts are of gum. When the finish is applied, a layman could hardly distinguish this from real mahogany. The panels are veneered with genuine mahogany That is, they are of hardwood, covered with a very thin slab of genuine mahogany.

Our Permanent Policy—"It's Exactly What We Call It."

You may be sure that when we say an article is solid mahogany, it's MAHOGANY—through and through—every stick of it. And in every case, when we mention material, we tell exactly of what wood the piece is built. We pass over nothing with a glib phrase that might leave a favorable but mistaken impression. If "mahogany" is offered at a phenomenally low price, how can a dealer hope to get a high price when he has a real mahogany article to offer?

Join the Christmas Club and Make Your Charity of the Silent, Effective Kind.

Santa Claus Editor Will Mail Names of Children Direct to Your Address.

Then You Get a Little Gift or Two and be Old Santa Claus for Some Kiddies.

There's many a citizen of Lima willing to expend a dime or a quarter to make some kid's Christmas a bit more merry—if he just knew where to find that particular kid

Right here is where the Santa Claus club comes in.

The Santa Claus Editor is securing the names of Lima children who will not only appreciate but who deserve a little box of candy, or a doll for Christmas. He has the co-operation of charitable institutions, and the names of these little ones are being carefully compiled.

A new Santa Claus blank is being printed today. Its different from the average Christmas Club membership. You merely figure on about how many little tots you'd like to give a bag of candy or a doll, or an orange on Christmas—and your card will be filed away. A few days before Christmas the editor of the Santa Claus Club will mail you the names and addresses of the children to whom you can send—or, better still, take—the little gifts you want them to have.

If you want to make two children happy, fill in the blank with the figure "2" and just before Christmas you will receive by mail the names of two children to whom your gifts may be made. Send for as many names as you like. No difference if you only desire to give each child an orange or a nickel's worth of candy, the names will be sent you and the children will be thankful for whatever you may send them.

The names will not be duplicated. Other members of the Santa Claus club will not get the same names that are sent to you. In that way no child will be overlooked, and none will be favored with more gifts than come from one person.

Send in the blank today, with your name and address. Tell the Santa Claus editor how many names of deserving children you desire, and in a few days before time to make the gifts the names will be mailed you. You buy the gift yourself, you see that it is delivered. The Santa Claus editor finds the little heart that ought to be made happy, and puts you in touch with it.

Right now is the time to enroll, for the children's names are going to be mailed out in the order in which club memberships come in. The Santa Claus editor isn't going to print your name, nor the names of the children. So send in the membership blank, and get ready, at the expense of a dime or two, to make this the merriest Christmas the little tots upon whom fortune has not smiled the merriest they have ever known.

INSURANCE PEOPLE GROWING ALARMED

Reported Shortage of Water in Lima Puts Them on the Anxious Seat Again.

Recent Rains Serve to Aid but Little and One Lake is Dry at Present Time.

Representatives of large fire insurance companies are demanding to know the exact status of the water situation in Lima One of the biggest insurance adjusters in the state has inquired as to the trouble that would be experienced in fighting a large fire.

According to Service Director Metheany at the present time there is a 40-day supply of water in the reservoir adjacent to the waterworks pumping station. However, the supply at Lima lake is almost exhausted. Sufficient water for an hour's pumping resulted from the rain Monday night.

The supply of water at the Solar reservoir has been used by the city, and now there is nothing to fall back on but that contained in the two city reservoirs. However, if the condition demands, it will be possible to connect up city mains with the Solar reservoir that is supplied by wells. The only objection to the use of this water comes from the manufacturing firms in the city because of the damage it does to boilers.

BONDING COMPANY COMPLAINS

Toledo Concern Does Not Like Way Transcript is Drawn Up.

Spitzer, Rorick & Company, the Toledo bond house awarded the right to purchase the $100,000 river bonds issued for the purpose of improving the Ottawa river, have not yet completed the purchase. They offered the city a $6,951 premium in addition to par and accrued interest.

According to Auditor Rupert the bond company is complaining of the manner in which the transcript granting the sale of the bonds is drawn up. The difference results over the question as to whether the council should have passed the ordinance directing that the bonds be sold before it passed a resolution to proceed with the work.

Although the bids submitted by contractors for the work in connection with the Ottawa river project are to be received by the board of control tomorrow the funds to carry on the improvement will not be available until the difference between the bonding house and the city is settled If they refuse to carry out their part of the contract it is likely that the bonds will be given to the next highest bidder.

BIG CHURCH COUNCIL OPENS IN ST. LOUIS

Body is an Association of 32 Religious Denominations and 18,000,000 Souls.

Social Evil and Prohibition Are Among the Topics to be Discussed by Delegates

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 6.—The national convention of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America opened here today for its annual five days' session with 500 of the leading clergy and laymen of the American Protestant churches in attendance. The council is an association of 32 denominations, representing a membership of more than 18,000,000 persons.

A certain faction among the delegates, it is understood, has come to the convention determined that the body shall take radical action regarding the social evil, and it is expected that sensational resolutions will be introduced into the convention and hotly fought for.

Whether the Protestant churches of the United States shall declare for nation-wide prohibition is another important question which will come before the council.

The whole matter of prohibition has been in the hands of the commission on temperance, appointed at the last council, and upon the recommendation of that body the attitude of the council largely depends.

Although the council, through its various commissions, has taken decided stands on many subjects of live public interest since its organization in 1908, prohibition has not as yet been one of them. This, together with the fact that William Jennings Bryan is to be one of the principal speakers of the convention, has led many to expect a definite pronouncement on the subject, and predictions are not lacking among high officials of the council that the commission's report will advocate a united campaign of all the Protestant churches to make the nation dry in 1920.

The following speakers have been announced for the various meetings of the council

William Jennings Bryan, Dr. John R. Mott, Professor Shailer Mathews, Bishop Mathews, Bishop E. A. Hendrix, Rev. Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, Dr Frederick Lynch, Gifford Pinchot, Fred B. Smith, Hamilton Holt, Bishop Samuel Fallows, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, Harry F. Ward, Professor Edwin A. Steiner, Raymond Robins and Charles W. Fairbanks.

FUNERAL HAS VERY PATHETIC FEATURE

Sad Scene at St. Marys When Body of Harry McAfee Arrives From Lima.

Victim of Runaway Accident Paid Pretty Tribute by Editor of the Leader.

A funeral, with pathetic features such as that never held in St. Marys was services this morning at 10.30 o'clock at the Methodist church there over the body of Harry McAfee. He met with an accident on Saturday which resulted in his death in Lima hospital on Sunday.

He was 17 years old and a member of the Senior class of St Marys high school. Pupils of his class carried the pall. The class was given permission to remain from school to attend the funeral. Pall bearers were Harold Kuhlman, Harold Garber, George Orphal, George Losher, Wilbur Fast and Miles Levering. Interment was made near St. Marys.

A frightened team of horses which he was driving on last Saturday collided with a tree in the orchard of the McAfee farm. He was thrown head foremost off a load of corn fodder, leanding between the horses. He was unconscious for a time and failed to recover after being subjected to surgical treatment here.

The St. Marys Leader of Tuesday, speaking editorially, said:

"One of the saddest scenes we have witnessed for a long time was enacted at the Western Ohio interurban station in this city last Sunday morning. A high school boy, a member of the senior class, Harry McAfee, had met with an accident on Saturday which resulted in his death, at the Lima hospital, Sunday morning. Near the scheduled time for the arrival of the remains, a large representation of high school students and teachers gathered at the interurban station. They had gathered there as a tribute of love and respect for the memory of the boy whose life had gone out in the very bloom and vigor of youth. It was a case of sincere mourning, and when the remains arrived, accompanied by those to whom the boy was endeared by the ties of nature and love, the scene was pathetic in the extreme."

INSURANCE PEOPLE GROWING ALARMED

Reported Shortage of Water in Lima Puts Them on the Anxious Seat Again.

Recent Rains Serve to Aid but Little and One Lake is Dry at Present Time.

Representatives of large fire insurance companies are demanding to know the exact status of the water situation in Lima. One of the biggest insurance adjusters in the state has inquired as to the trouble that would be experienced in fighting a large fire.

According to Service Director Metheany at the present time there is a 40-day supply of water in the reservoir adjacent to the waterworks pumping station. However, the supply at Lima lake is almost exhausted. Sufficient water for an hour's pumping resulted from the rain Monday night.

The supply of water at the Solar reservoir has been used by the city, and now there is nothing to fall back on but that contained in the two city reservoirs. However, if the condition demands, it will be possible to connect up city mains with the Solar reservoir that is supplied by wells. The only objection to the use of this water comes from the manufacturing firms in the city because of the damage it does to boilers.

BONDING COMPANY COMPLAINS

Toledo Concern Does Not Like Way Transcript is Drawn Up.

Spitzer, Rorick & Company, the Toledo bond house awarded the right to purchase the $100,000 river bonds issued for the purpose of improving the Ottawa river, have not yet completed the purchase. They offered the city a $6,951 premium in addition to par and accrued interest.

According to Auditor Rupert the bond company is complaining of the manner in which the transcript granting the sale of the bonds is drawn up. The difference results over the question as to whether the council should have passed the ordinance directing that the bonds be sold before it passed a resolution to proceed with the work.

Although the bids submitted by contractors for the work in connection with the Ottawa river project are to be received by the board of control tomorrow the funds to carry on the improvement will not be available until the difference between the bonding house and the city is settled. If they refuse to carry out their part of the contract it is likely that the bonds will be given to the next highest bidder.

BIG CHURCH COUNCIL OPENS IN ST. LOUIS

Body is an Association of 32 Religious Denominations and 18,000,000 Souls.

Social Evil and Prohibition Are Among the Topics to be Discussed by Delegates

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 6.—The national convention of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America opened here today for its annual five days' session with 500 of the leading clergy and laymen of the American Protestant churches in attendance. The council is an association of 32 denominations, representing a membership of more than 18,000,000 persons.

A certain faction among the delegates, it is understood, has come to the convention determined that the body shall take radical action regarding the social evil, and it is expected that sensational resolutions will be introduced into the convention and hotly fought for.

Whether the Protestant churches of the United States shall declare for nation-wide prohibition is another important question which will come before the council.

The whole matter of prohibition has been in the hands of the commission on temperance, appointed at the last council, and upon the recommendation of that body the attitude of the council largely depends.

Although the council, through its various commissions, has taken decided stands on many subjects of live public interest since its organization in 1908, prohibition has not as yet been one of them. This, together with the fact that William Jennings Bryan is to be one of the principal speakers of the convention, has led many to expect a definite pronouncement on the subject, and predictions are not lacking among high officials of the council that the commission's report will advocate a united campaign of all the Protestant churches to make the nation dry in 1920.

The following speakers have been announced for the various meetings of the council:

William Jennings Bryan, Dr. John R. Mott, Professor Shailer Mathews, Bishop Mathews, Bishop E. A. Hendrix, Rev. Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, Dr. Frederick Lynch, Gifford Pinchot, Fred B. Smith, Hamilton Holt, Bishop Samuel Fallows, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, Dr. Sidney L. Gulick, Harry F. Ward, Professor Edwin A. Steiner, Raymond Robins and Charles W. Fairbanks.

FUNERAL HAS VERY PATHETIC FEATURE

Sad Scene at St. Marys When Body of Harry McAfee Arrives From Lima.

Victim of Runaway Accident Paid Pretty Tribute by Editor of the Leader.

A funeral, with pathetic features such as that never held in St. Marys was services this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Methodist church there over the body of Harry McAfee. He met with an accident on Saturday which resulted in his death in Lima hospital on Sunday.

He was 17 years old and a member of the Senior class of St. Marys high school. Pupils of his class carried the pall. The class was given permission to remain from school to attend the funeral. Pall bearers were Harold Kuhlman, Harold Garber, George Orphal, George Loshor, Wilbur Fast and Miles Levering. Interment was made near St. Marys.

A frightened team of horses which he was driving on last Saturday collided with a tree in the orchard of the McAfee farm. He was thrown head foremost off a load of corn fodder, leanding between the horses. He was unconscious for a time and failed to recover after being subjected to surgical treatment here.

The St. Marys Leader of Tuesday, speaking editorially, said:

"One of the saddest scenes we have witnessed for a long time was enacted at the Western Ohio interurban station in this city last Sunday morning. A high school boy, a member of the senior class, Harry McAfee, had met with an accident on Saturday which resulted in his death, at the Lima hospital, Sunday morning. Near the scheduled time for the arrival of the remains, a large representation of high school students and teachers gathered at the interurban station. They had gathered there as a tribute of love and respect for the memory of the boy whose life had gone out in the very bloom and vigor of youth. It was a case of sincere mourning, and when the remains arrived, accompanied by those to whom the boy was endeared by the ties of nature and love, the scene was pathetic in the extreme."

NO LICENSE FORCES MAKE GAINS IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 6.—The sweeping victory for the no-license forces in the 15 city elections which swung four from wet to dry and cut the wet vote in every city but two, sent the license advocates scurrying about today in increased fear that the sweep may yet include Boston.

Fall River, Haverhill, Taunton and Loeminster were the cities to swing into the no-license column. Taunton has been wet for 16 years. No dry city has swung into the wet column. Gloucester was the only wet city to increase the yes majority yesterday.

DEPEW IN TROUBLE FOR SCORING DAVID

Octogenarian ex-Senator Depew's criticism of King David for saying man's life should be "three score and ten" years, in his recent widely quoted speech on how to keep young, got him into all sorts of trouble.

Mr. Depew confided to the Lotos club at a dinner here:

"Ever since then I have been lambasted by the press, the deacons and the clergy on the charge of villifying the character of David, who hadn't struck me as a saint. The next time I make a reference like that I'll use Nebuchadnezzar or one of the Egyptians."

SPORT CLOTHES FOR UP TO DATE SPORT, SKATING

Color Note Most Prominent in the Dashing Costumes Shown in Fashion Plates.

Charming Muffler and Turban Sets Included in the Array of Apparel Here.

Coat of Wool Velour With Fur Collar; Checker-board Design is Also Favored.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—The fashionable sport to indulge in this winter is skating—there is no doubt about it. Everyone has taken to skating with as much ardor as they took to dancing several winters ago. Last year everybody skated, and this year they are to be just as enthusiastic about it. Before the winter season really came in officially, the rinks were thrown open and thronged with sports-loving crowds.

Skating Coat of Wool Velours With Fur Collar.

Is it the love for sports that has created the charming sports clothes we see, or is it just the irresistible charm of these clothes that has fostered the craze for sports?

Whatever answer the psychologist may have to this question, the fact remains that sports clothes have never been so popular or so attractive as they are today. They have risen to such a prominent position that even those who do not pretend to be sportswomen may wear them with all propriety.

There are sports clothes of every type, showing as wide a variety in color, cut and fabric as anyone could wish. To go skating you may wear a long, warm coat such as the one pictured here, with a one-piece dress, or else a two-piece suit of wool jersey, corduroy, velvet, zibeline or duvetyn, or a separate short coat with a skirt of a contrasting color and contrasting material. Both hip-length and longer coats are used, and the skirts are worn quite short.

The Color Note in Sports Clothes

More striking, perhaps, than any other feature of sports costumes is the color note. Bright, vivid colors are used to a larger extent than the lighter colorings, though all-white and black and black-and-white combinations are very well liked. White suits of chinchilla or corduroy trimmed with black fur are very attractive and some of these have muffs to match, combining the material of the suit and the fur with which it is trimmed.

Some very striking costumes consist of plaid wool coats, the plaid including many colors, with wool jersey or corduroy skirts in bright rose, orange or emerald green. With these costumes are worn Scotch plaid wool hose to match the coats. This is one of the very latest novelties. Russian green, purple, brown and yellow are some of the other colors in demand.

New Skating Sets.

There are lovely sets of long mufflers and caps to be worn with sweaters and separate skirts. These come in all the gay self colors, and often two colors are combined. A charming set recently seen was of black velvet with bands of Paisley at either end of the muffler. A black velvet tam-o-shanter with a band of Paisley and a rosette of the same at the side, went with it. Paisley was also combined with light-brown wool in another set of muffler and turban.

Sweaters of Angora, Shetland wool, silk and wood jersey seem to be more popular than any others, and the models are belted across the front or back, or all around. Sometimes leather belts are worn with them. Slip-on sweaters with no opening at all have also sprung into favor again. They are on the order of the popular blouses that are slipped on over the head.

A long coat of wool velours with a large fur collar buttoned snugly around the throat is shown here as an example of one of the many smart coats which are used not only for skating but for other purposes as well. A marked feature of coats this season is the large collar, which may or may not be of fur, according to the taste of the wearer. Quite unlike the standing "chin" collars of last year, they spread over the shoulders and are generally rolled over, giving extra warmth. Though they give somewhat a bulky appearance, they are very becoming and thoroughly comfortable. In addition to a fur collar, one occasionally sees pockets of fur on cloth coats.

The Checker-Board Design is Favored for Dresses.

The checker-board design in wool materials is quite a favorite for dresses. Relieved by trimming of a plain material in some harmonizing tone, the effect is entirely pleasing. Such a combination is illustrated in the attractive model in black-and-white wool check with plain broadcloth trimming shown here. The up-standing "fence" collar extending almost from shoulder to shoulder is still featured in a number of new models. Belts in fancy design also contribute in a great degree to the novelty of the designs. In this instance, the deep yoke belt, which does not entirely encircle the waist, is a prominent feature.

"SON OF ERIN" IS A HIT AT THE FAUROT

Dustin Farnum's Dashing Style of Act is Still Going Strong at Local House.

Last Time Tonight of the Orpheum's Good Bill—Gossip From Playhouses.

THE FAUROT'S PICTURES

"A Son of Erin," the new Paramount picture at the Faurot is a fine vehicle for Dustin Farnum's dashing style of acting. There are pretty love scenes, with Winifred Kingston as an appealing figure, excellent atmosphere of Irish farm life, and the usual attractive settings which the Pallas company gives its productions. The technical side of the picture is superior, and Mr. Farnum, Miss Kingston and their excellent supporting cast are quite as picturesque as the surroundings in which they are placed. Burton Holmes' "In Modern Athens," a fresh edition of the Pathe News and a Katzenjammer Kids" cartoon are also on the program which will be shown for the last time tonight.

* * *

ORPHEUM.

Emmett J. Welch's "Boardwalk Minstrels," which has proven one of the most entertaining and beautiful feature acts of the Orpheum's season, will close their engagement at this theatre with three performances today. In addition to this pleasing feature four other acts, with an abundance of comedy completes one of the most entertaining vaudeville programes offered at this popular playhouse in some time.

If you enjoy a good hearty laugh the present program will provide ample opportunity for same. Tonight at the second performance as an added attraction the "Country Store" will be given, which will prove a riot of fun. Last season when the country store was given, it was impossible to secure a seat. Better order seats at once. Three performances today, matinee at 2.30 and tonight at 7.30 and 9.

* * *

BLUEBIRD FEATURE TODAY

At the Royal today for the last time, Mary Maclaren, the heroine in "Shoes" and "Saving the Family Name" appears in the Bluebird Fine Arts film entitled "Wanted a Home." She never appeared to better advantage than in this one and quickly arouses our sympathy through her clever work. Besides this Paddy McGuire dispenses the fun in the two reel Vogue comedy entitled "With or Without" and it is certainly a clever comedy.

* * *

NAT GOODWIN TOMORROW.

It is very seldom that one sees two such famous stars in extremely opposite lines as one will see at the Royal tomorrow. Nat Goodwin, the famous stage star and tragedian, appears tomorrow in one of the his most famous plays "The Wall Street Tragedy" and which shows to the best advantage his forceful acting. Nat Goodwin gives a series of character drawing only possible for an actor of his unmistakable genius. Besides this five reeler, Charlie Chaplin will appear in a return booking in "One A. M." and which is shown again because of the request of so many desiring to see him in this film again. Thursday and Friday this splendid combination will be screened at the Royal.

* * *

CRANE WILBUR TODAY.

Whenever the announcement is made that Crane Wilbur will appear in another feature, movie patrons plan on attending for he is a great favorite. Today at Dreamland he appears in the Gaumont three-reel feature entitled "The Blood of Our Brothers" and with the assistance of a capable cast, he renders this heavy dramatic production pleasing to all. Besides this is shown clever Neva Gerber in a Beauty comedy "Walk This Way" and which is a travesty on the fashion of the day.

* * *

STRAND'S BILL TODAY.

At the Strand today will be exhibited two features. The first is a detective story from the studios of the Thanhouser company, "A Flaw in the Evidence," and which proves that circumstantial evidence should not always convict a person. With Doris Grey in the leading role, this drama is very pleasing. There will also be presented the two inimitable comedians, Rube Miller and Dick Turpin, in the two reel Vogue comedy "The Stolen Booking." With two such feature, this popular little theater should draw good houses.

SPORT CLOTHES FOR UP TO DATE SPORT, SKATING

Color Note Most Prominent in the Dashing Costumes Shown in Fashion Plates.

Charming Muffler and Turban Sets Included in the Array of Apparel Here.

Coat of Wool Velour With Fur Collar; Checker-board Design is Also Favored.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The fashionable sport to indulge in this winter is skating—there is no doubt about it. Everyone has taken to skating with as much ardor as they took to dancing several winters ago. Last year everybody skated, and this year they are to be just as enthusiastic about it. Before the winter season really came in officially, the rinks were thrown open and thronged with sports-loving crowds.

Skating Coat of Wool Velours With Fur Collar.

Is it the love for sports that has created the charming sports clothes we see, or is it just the irresistible charm of these clothes that has fostered the craze for sports?

Whatever answer the psychologist may have to this question, the fact remains that sports clothes have never been so popular or so attractive as they are today. They have risen to such a prominent position that even those who do not pretend to be sportswomen may wear them with all propriety.

There are sports clothes of every type, showing as wide a variety in color, cut and fabric as anyone could wish. To go skating, you may wear a long, warm coat such as the one pictured here, with a one-piece dress, or else a two-piece suit of wool jersey, corduroy, velvet, zibeline or duvetyn, or a separate short coat with a skirt of a contrasting color and contrasting material. Both hip-length and longer coats are used, and the skirts are worn quite short.

The Color Note in Sports Clothes.

More striking, perhaps, than any other feature of sports costumes is the color note. Bright, vivid colors are used to a larger extent than the lighter colorings, though all-white and black and black-and-white combinations are very well liked. White suits of chinchilla or corduroy trimmed with black fur are very attractive, and some of these have muffs to match, combining the material of the suit and the fur with which it is trimmed.

Some very striking costumes consist of plaid wool coats, the plaid including many colors, with wool jersey or corduroy skirts in bright rose, orange or emerald green. With these costumes are worn Scotch plaid wool hose to match the coats. This is one of the very latest novelties. Russian green, purple, brown and yellow are some of the other colors in demand.

New Skating Sets.

There are lovely sets of long mufflers and caps to be worn with sweaters and separate skirts. These come in all the gay self colors, and often two colors are combined. A charming set recently seen was of black velvet with bands of Paisley at either end of the muffler. A black velvet tam-o'-shanter with a band of Paisley and a rosette of the same at the side, went with it. Paisley was also combined with light-brown wool in another set of muffler and turban.

Sweaters of Angora, Shetland wool, silk and wood jersey seem to be more popular than any others, and the models are belted across the front or back, or all around. Sometimes leather belts are worn with them. Slip-on sweaters with no opening at all have also sprung into favor again. They are on the order of the popular blouses that are slipped on over the head.

A long coat of wool velours with a large fur collar buttoned snugly around the throat is shown here as an example of one of the many smart coats which are used not only for skating but for other purposes as well. A marked feature of coats this season is the large collar, which may or may not be of fur, according to the taste of the wearer. Quite unlike the standing "chin" collars of last year, they spread over the shoulders and are generally rolled over, giving extra warmth. Though they give somewhat a bulky appearance, they are very becoming and thoroughly comfortable. In addition to a fur collar, one occasionally sees pockets of fur on cloth coats.

The Checker-Board Design is Favored for Dresses.

The checker-board design in wool materials is quite a favorite for dresses. Relieved by trimming of a plain material in some harmonizing tone, the effect is entirely pleasing. Such a combination is illustrated in the attractive model in black-and-white wool check with plain broadcloth trimming shown here. The up-standing "fence" collar extending almost from shoulder to shoulder is still featured in a number of new models. Belts in fancy design also contribute in a great degree to the novelty of the designs. In this instance, the deep yoke belt, which does not entirely encircle the waist, is a prominent feature.

"SON OF ERIN" IS A HIT AT THE FAUROT

Dustin Farnum's Dashing Style of Act is Still Going Strong at Local House.

Last Time Tonight of the Orpheum's Good Bill—Gossip From Playhouses.

THE FAUROT'S PICTURES

"A Son of Erin," the new Paramount pisture at the Faurot is a fine vehicle fro Dustin Farnum's dashing style of acting. There are pretty love sceens, with Winifred Kingston as an appealing figure; excellent atmosphere of Irish farm life, and the usual attractive settings which the Pallas company gives its productions. The technical side of the picture is superior, and Mr. Farnum, Miss Kingston and their excellent supporting cast are quite as picturesque as the surroundings in which they are placed. Burton Molmes' "In Modern Athens," a fresh edition of the Pathe News and a "Katzenjammer Kids" cartoon are also on the program which will be shown for the last time tonight.

ORPHEUM.

Emmett J. Welch's "Boardwalk Minstrels," which has proven one of the most entertaining and beautiful feature acts of the Orpheum's season, will close their engagement at this theatre with three performances today. In addition to this pleasing feature four other acts, with an abundance of comedy completes one of the most entertaining vaudeville programes offered at this popular playhouse in some time.

If you enjoy a good hearty laugh the present program will provide ample opportunity for same. Tonight at the second performance as an added attraction the "Country Store" will be given, which will prove a riot of fun. Last season when the country store was given, it was impossible to secure a seat. Better order seats at once. Three performances today, matinee at 2:30 and tonight at 7:30 and 9.

BLUEBIRD FEATURE TODAY

At the Royal today for the last time, Mary Maclaren, the heroine in "Shoes" and "Saving the Family Name" appears in the Bluebird Fine Arts film entitled "Wanted a Home." She never appeared to better advantage than in this one and quickly arouses our sympathy through her clever work. Besides this Paddy McGuire dispenses the fun in the two reel Vogue comedy entitled "With or Without" and it is certainly a clever comedy.

NAT GOODWIN TOMORROW.

It is very seldom that one sees two such famous stars in extremely opposite lines as one will see at the Royal tomorrow. Nat Goodwin, the famous stage star and tragedian, appears tomorrow in one of the his most famous plays "The Wall Street Tragedy" and which shows to the best advantage his forceful acting. Nat Goodwin gives a series of character drawing only possible for an actor of his unmistakable genius. Besides this five reeler, Charlie Chaplin will appear in a return booking in "One A. M." and which is shown again because of the request of so many desiring to see him in this film again. Thursday and Friday this splendid combination will be screened at the Royal.

CRANE WILBUR TODAY.

Whenever the announcement is made that Crane Wilbur will appear in another feature, movie patrons plan on attending for he is a great favorite. Today at Dreamland he appears in the Gaumont three-reel feature entitled "The Blood of Our Brothers" and with the assistance of a capable cast, he renders this heavy dramatic production pleasing to all. Besides this is shown clever Neva Gerber in a Beauty comedy, "Walk This Way" and which is a travesty on the fashion of the day.

STRAND'S BILL TODAY.

At the Strand today will be exhibited two features. The first is a detective story from the studios of the Thanhouser company, "A Flaw in the Evidence," and which proves that circumstantial evidence should not always convict a person. With Doris Grey in the leading role, this drama is very pleasing. There will also be presented the two inimitable comedians, Rube Miller and Dick Turpin, in the two reel Vogue comedy "The Stolen Booking." With two such features, this popular little theater should draw good houses.

Springfield Here For First Game

Probable line-up for opening game:

With the Springfield Triangles here as the big attraction, the 1916-17 semi-professional basketball season will be thrown wide open tonight when the Eilerman Cadets will make their first appearance on a local floor as the representative team of Lima. Local fans are lucky to have the high class indoor sport this winter, as it is only through the efforts of the members of the Cadet aggregation that we are being treated to it.

Tonight's game brings along with it many features. Fred Nordquist, former physical director of the local Y. M. C. A., is coaching the Springfield team and will accompany them here. Nordquist is well known in the the athletic circle and many of his friends are expected to turn out and see his men perform. Nordquist coached the Cadets last season and made real basketball players out of them.

"Red" Buscher, fast Ottawa boy, will be seen in the Cadet line-up. The management has been fortunate in securing the services of this lad, as he is in great demand among the big teams in this section. Buscher has improved considerably since he last performed on a local floor, and is one of the most feared men on a basketball court around this neck of the woods.

Coach Hill of the High school is another new addition to the Lima reps. Hill has showed them some finer points about the game and under his direction have rounded out in fine form.

Miller, Farrell, Baker and Dickey are the other members of the team. With this line of basketball material the local representatives should put up a stiff battle with Springfield aggregation.

Coach Davis, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., and Fred Nordquist, of Springfield, will alternate in the refereeing of the contest. With these two men acting as officials the game is bound to be still faster. After the game, there will be dancing.

Bowling

The Gazette bowling five annexed another victory to their long list last night when they defeated the Shamrocks by the score of 2622-2510. The Gazetteites have been going at a fast clip this season and it seems as they are going to be hard to be downed.

GRACE BASKETBALL SQUAD BREAKS TRAINING AT FEAST.

The Grace basketball squad of the representative team last evening were guests of Manager Clevenger at a big chicken dinner, as the result of the outcome of the Thanksgiving game at Sidney. The basketshooters broke all rules of training for the occasion and enjoyed themselves to the utmost in the feast of good eats. The dinner was at the home of the host and his mother, assisted by Mrs. Grant, served the three-course menu.

The guests included Paul Bacome, Benjamin Baumgardner, Earl Grant, Harold Stepleton, Harold King, Clyde Zurmehly and Homer Reid. Wilbur Bowersock, the fast guard of the Grace five, was unable to be present. Immediately following the dinner, it was announced that the rigid training rules would continue, unless some other charitably inclined host would duplicate Manager Clevenger's treat in the future.

This spring, instead of leaving Marlin each week to play in various cities in Texas, the Giants will remain at Marlin and play exhibition games.

L. H. S. Candidates Engage in Workout

Coach Hill, had somewhere in the neighborhood of fifty-five basketballers on the floor yesterday afternoon for practice. Several teams were picked from the bunch and the afternoon was devoted to playing basketball. The practice lasted from 3:30 until about 6 o'clock.

Hill stated that up until Christmas he will have three teams, and it is up to the candidates to get on one of these three.

Of the many that turned out for practice the coach should be able to pick out a favorable five to represent the high school. Just when the opening game will be played has not as yet been let out.

Help for Bronchial Trouble and Cough

"Foley's Honey and Tar Compound acts more like a food than a medicine."

Mr. Will G. Richmond, Inglewood, Calif., says:—"I wish to recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as it has greatly benefitted me for bronchial trouble and cough. It acts so well in harmony with nature that it is more like a food than a medicine."

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has a wonderfully quick way of soothing and healing the raw tickling surfaces of the throat and bronchial tubes. It eases the tightness over the chest, raises the phlegm easily, and helps the stubborn racking cough that is so exhausting and weakening.

It is the best medicine you can buy, and better than anything you can make, for coughs, colds, spasmodic croup, whooping cough, la grippe and bronchial coughs, hoarseness, tickling throat and stuffy wheezy breathing. It contains no opiates, and is acceptable to the most sensitive stomach.

NATION'S FINANCIAL STRENGTHEXCELLENT

U. S. Treasury Will Need More Funds, However, to Cover Preparedness Plan.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo Submits Report of Cash Box to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Unless American troops on the Mexican border are withdrawn and the expeditionary drive into the interior of Mexico is abandoned, the United States will have to resort to extraordinary financing measures, such as the sale of Panama canal bonds or the enactment of a new war tax, to keep the government's ledger balanced. This is the ultimatum of Treasurer William G. McAdoo, contained in his annual report, submitted to congress today. Mr. McAdoo says the need for extra funds is created by the cost of the Mexican operations on top of the expanded preparedness program.

Secretary McAdoo estimates that appropriations for the fiscal year 1918, beginning next July, will reach $1,654,819,654.

The secretary's report declares the country is in excellent condition, economically, industrially and financially.

"General confidence in the future, healthful enterprise and development have been the marked characteristics of the year," he says.

The financial strength of the United States is declared to be the greatest in the history of the nation. Mr. McAdoo gives much credit for the strong position of the United States to the Federal Reserve system, declaring that prosperity could not endoure without it.

He points out that bank rates have been low and that we have been able not only to finance our own tremendous foreign and domestic trade, "but have been able to lend generously to other countries. He emphasizes that even in the face of the threatened railway strike last summer there was no financial disturbance, owing to confidence in the Federal Reserve system.

Secretary McAdoo's report says that although the Federal Reserve banks were doing much to finance the American farmers by making loans on his land and his produce, the farmer further was emancipated during the year by the enactment of the Farm Loan Act, which shortly, he predicts, will be in full operation, extending credit to those farmers who heretofore have been unable to procure it. It is hoped, he says, to give them a rate as low as 4 1-2 per cent on their loans, permitting repayment in 40 years.

The secretary calls attention to the work of the bureau of war risk insurance and declares that unless congress extends the life of this institution another year from the date now fixed for its expiration, September 2, 1917, American shipping will be much damaged.

The secretary's report declares that in the last decade $180,000,000 has been spent for public buildings, largely "pork." He recommends the abolition of the omnibus public buildings bill and urges appropriation for buildings only on the merits of the actual needs of the several communities, with the pork cut away.

He asks congress to provide funds for the establishment of an auxiliary aviation corps in the United States coast guard.

SEN. RANSDELL IN WATERWAYS MEET

Warfare Against Nation's Rivers and Harbors by Railways is Deplored.

Loose Talk About "Pork" in Federal Appropriations is Likewise Denounced.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Deploring the warfare waged against the nation's waterways by the so-called railroad interests, and registering a heated denial of the oft-repeated charge that the United States treasury is raided for private gain through river and harbor appropriations, United States Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, of Louisville, today opened the National Rivers and Harbors congress with a ringing appeal to delegates present from commercial, industrial and waterway organizations to set to work to combat the fight of railroads to maintain a monopoly of inland transportation.

Senator Ransdell asserted there had been too much loose talk about "Pork' in the waterway appropriations secured from congress. Those who denounced appropriations for waterway projects, he said, usually were without technical training or engineering experience, and did not base their conclusions on surveys or examinations. The work of improvement of the country's waterways, he asserted, has been seriously delayed with the evident object of the opposition to bring about abandonment of waterway development.

One of the most important addresses will be that of Newton D. Baker, secretary of war, who has general supervision of river and harbor improvements authorized by congress. On the general subject of national efficiency the following speakers are announced: Rear Admiral William S. Benson, chief of naval operations, on "The Relation of Improved Waterways to Naval Efficiency;" Lieutenant Henry Jervey, of the engineer corps, "The Military Value of Improved Waterways," and former Governor William A. McCorkle, of West Virginia, "Waterways and Industrial Development."

Irving C. Norwood, of Dovenport, Ia., president of the Mississippi Valley Terminal league; Albert Bettinger, of Cincinnati; Brigadier-General W. M. Black, chief of enginers, U. S. A., and F. L. Wallace, of St. Louis, will also speak.

The delegates will be entertained tonight at a reception by the Federation of Women's Clubs.

Springfield Here For First Game

Probable line-up for opening game:

Springfield	Pos	Cadets

Martin-Stevens	rg	Farrell

With the Springfield Triangles here as the big attraction, the 1916-17 semi-professional basketball season will be thrown wide open tonight when the Eilerman Cadets will make their first appearance on a local floor as the representative team of Lima. Local fans are lucky to have the high class indoor sport this winter, as it is only through the efforts of the members of the Cadet aggregation that we are being treated to it.

Tonight's game brings along with it many features. Fred Nordquist, former physical director of the local Y. M. C. A., is coaching the Springfield team and will accompany them here. Nordquist is well known in the the athletic circle and many of his friends are expected to turn out and see his men perform. Nordquist coached the Cadets last season and made real basketball players out of them.

"Red" Buscher, fast Ottawa boy, will be seen in the Cadet line-up. The management has been fortunate in securing the services of this lad, as he is in great demand among the big teams in this section. Buscher has improved considerably since he last performed on a local floor, and is one of the most feared men on a basketball court around this neck of the woods.

Coach Hill of the High school is another new addition to the Lima reps. Hill has showed them some finer points about the game and under his direction have rounded out in fine form.

Miller, Farrell, Baker and Dickey are the other members of the team. With this line of basketball material the local representatives should put up a stiff battle with Springfield aggregation.

Coach Davis, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., and Fred Nordquist, of Springfield, will alternate in the refereeing of the contest. With these two men acting as officials the game is bound to be still faster. After the game, there will be dancing.

Bowling

The Gazette bowling five annexed another victory to their long list last night when they defeated the Shamrocks by the score of 2622-2510. The Gazetteites have been going at a fast clip this season and it seems as they are going to be hard to be downed.

GRACE BASKETBALL SQUAD BREAKS TRAINING AT FEAST.

The Grace basketball squad of the representative team last evening were guests of Manager Clevenger at a big chicken dinner, as the result of the outcome of the Thanksgiving game at Sidney. The basketshooters broke all rules of training for the occasion and enjoyed themselves to the utmost in the feast of good eats. The dinner was at the home of the host and his mother, assisted by Mrs. Grant, served the three-course menu.

The guests included Paul Bacome, Benjamin Baumgardner, Earl Grant, Harold Stepleton, Harold King, Clyde Zurmehly and Homer Reid. Wilbur Bowersock, the fast guard of the Grace five, was unable to be present. Immediately following the dinner, it was announced that the rigid training rules would continue, unless some other charitably inclined host would duplicate Manager Clevenger's treat in the future.

Giants to Have New Grand Stand At Training Camp

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Before the spring training season begins, the Giants will erect a new grand-stand at Emerson park, their training camp at Marlin Springs, Texas. New York is the only club which owns its own training park in the south. Groundkeeper Henry Fabian will go to Marlin early next year to supervise the building of the new stand.

This spring, instead of leaving Marlin each week to play in various cities in Texas, the Giants will remain at Marlin and play exhibition games.

L. H. S. Candidates Engage in Workout

Coach Hill, had somewhere in the neighborhood of fifty-five basketballers on the floor yesterday afternoon for practice. Several teams were picked from the bunch and the afternoon was devoted to playing basketball. The practice lasted from 3:30 until about 6 o'clock.

Hill stated that up until Christmas he will have three teams, and it is up to the candidates to get on one of these three.

Of the many that turned out for practice the coach should be able to pick out a favorable five to represent the high school. Just when the opening game will be played has not as yet been let out.

Help for Bronchial Trouble and Cough

"Foley's Honey and Tar Compound acts more like a food than a medicine."

Mr. Will G. Richmond, Inglewood, Calif., says:—"I wish to recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as it has greatly benefitted me for bronchial trouble and cough. It acts so well in harmony with nature that it is more like a food than a medicine."

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has a wonderfully quick way of soothing and healing the raw tickling surface of the throat and bronchial tubes. It eases the tightness over the chest, raises the phlegm easily, and helps the stubborn racking cough that is so exhausting and weakening.

It is the best medicine you can buy, and better than anything you can make, for coughs, colds, spasmodic croup, whooping cough, la grippe and bronchial coughs, hoarseness, tickling throat and stuffy wheezy breathing. It contains no opiates, and is acceptable to the most sensitive stomach.

They jump upon my aching frame,
They kick me in the slats,
They bump me till my shins are lame
And all such things as that.
They light upon my tender nose,
They cuff me on the ear,
They trample me into the turf
Until I shed a tear.
Yet when I play a noble game
They never sing my praise,
They never boost my humble name
Upon the sporting page.
I'm just a common bobo, it seems,
The thought to me is gall,
For I play center on the team
And have no class at all.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Tex Rickard who hopes to stage a a bout here between Jess Willard and Georges Carpentier, today explained the length to which negotiations have extended as follows:

"Although I have not received the signatures of either boxer, I expect no difficulty in getting them. I am looking for Carpentier's signed contract at any time, and when I saw Willard in Chicago, I had a fairly good understanding with him. Should Willard refuse to box I will get Les Darcy. Of course, I must first secure Madison Square Garden as the scene of the fight, for it is the ideal place. If I am successful in landing the garden, I will stage nothing but championship bouts."

Right Thing to Contemplate

Life is so full of miseries, minor and major; they press so close upon us at every step of the way, that it is hardly worth while to call one another's attention to their presence. People who do this . . . are merely dwelling on the obvious, and the obvious is the one thing not worth consideration. What we want to contemplate is the beauty and the smoothness of that well ordered plan which it is so difficult for us to discuss.—Agnes Repplier.

NATION'S FINANCIAL STRENGTH EXCELLENT

U. S. Treasury Will Need More Funds, However, to Cover Preparedness Plan.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo Submits Report of Cash Box to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Unless American troops on the Mexican border are withdrawn and the expeditionary drive into the interior of Mexico is abandoned, the United States will have to resort to extraordinary financing measures, such as the sale of Panama canal bonds or the enactment of a new war tax, to keep the government's ledger balanced. This is the ultimatum of Treasurer William G. McAdoo, contained in his annual report, submitted to congress today. Mr. McAdoo says the need for extra funds is created by the cost of the Mexican operations on top of the expanded preparedness program.

Secretary McAdoo estimates that appropriations for the fiscal year 1918, beginning next July, will reach $1,654,819,654.

The secretary's report declares the country is in excellent condition, economically, industrially and financially.

"General confidence in the future, healthful enterprise and development have been the marked characteristics of the year," he says.

The financial strength of the United States is declared to be the greatest in the history of the nation. Mr. McAdoo gives much credit for the strong position of the United States to the Federal Reserve system, declaring that prosperity could not endoure without it.

He points out that bank rates have been low and that we have been able not only to finance our own tremendous foreign and domestic trade, but have been able to lend generously to other countries. He emphasizes that even in the face of the threatened railway strike last summer there was no financial disturbance, owing to confidence in the Federal Reserve system.

Secretary McAdoo's report says that although the Federal Reserve banks were doing much to finance the American farmers by making loans on his land and his produce, the farmer further was emancipated during the year by the enactment of the Farm Loan Act, which shortly, he predicts, will be in full operation, extending credit to those farmers who heretofore have been unable to procure it. It is hoped, he says, to give them a rate as low as 4 1-2 per cent on their loans, permitting repayment in 40 years.

The secretary calls attention to the work of the bureau of war risk insurance and declares that unless congress extends the life of this institution another year from the date now fixed for its expiration, September 2, 1917, American shipping will be much damaged.

The secretary's report declares that in the last decade $180,000,000 has been spent for public buildings, largely "pork." He recommends the abolition of the omnibus public buildings bill and urges appropriation for buildings only on the merits of the actual needs of the several communities, with the pork cut away.

He asks congress to provide funds for the establishment of an auxiliary aviation corps in the United States coast guard.

SEN. RANSDELL IN WATERWAYS MEET

Warfare Against Nation's Rivers and Harbors by Railways is Deplored.

Loose Talk About "Pork" in Federal Appropriations is Likewise Denounced.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Deploring the warfare waged against the nation's waterways by the so-called railroad interests, and registering a heated denial of the oft-repeated charge that the United States treasury is raided for private gain through river and harbor appropriations, United States Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, of Louisville, today opened the National Rivers and Harbors congress with a ringing appeal to delegates present from commercial, industrial and waterway organizations to set to work to combat the fight of railroads to maintain a monopoly of inland transportation.

Senator Ransdell asserted there had been too much loose talk about "Pork" in the waterway appropriations secured from congress. Those who denounced appropriations for waterway projects, he said, usually were without technical training or engineering experience, and did not base their conclusions on surveys or examinations. The work of improvement of the country's waterways, he asserted, has been seriously delayed with the evident object of the opposition to bring about abandonment of waterway development.

One of the most important addresses will be that of Newton D. Baker, secretary of war, who has general supervision of river and harbor improvements authorized by congress. On the general subject of national efficiency the following speakers are announced: Rear Admiral William S. Benson, chief of naval operations, on "The Relation of Improved Waterways to Naval Efficiency;" Lieutenant Henry Jervey, of the engineer corps, "The Military Value of Improved Waterways," and former Governor William A. McCorkle, of West Virginia, "Waterways and Industrial Development."

Irving C. Norwood, of Davenport, Ia., president of the Mississippi Valley Terminal league; Albert Bettinger, of Cincinnati; Brigadier-General W. M. Black, chief of engineers, U. S. A., and F. L. Wallace, of St. Louis, will also speak.

The delegates will be entertained tonight at a reception by the Federation of Women's Clubs.

You Never Can Judge.

There once was a man named O'Leary who remarked, "Though a face may be cheery, I find with alarm that despite its great charm, it may say things that make me quite weary"

TALKS ON THRIFT

For the past few years one of the timely and important topics has been the high cost of living. Foodstuffs have been increasing in cost with a rapidity that has made readjustment necessary in many lines, and only as wages have kept pace with the increase in other things have we been able to keep our financial ships off the rocks War conditions have not helped the matter, for in spite of our great prosperity the cost of living still mounts up.

As individuals we are in a large measure helpless to remedy the difficulty, for the causes are economic and beyond our control, but we can do much toward alleviating the resulting ills. We cannot all be teachers of domestic science, but we can all practice the art of good living We can do some solid thinking and apply thrift principles to our kitchens and dining rooms and offset in a very large measure the added strain of high prices

The trouble with many homekeepers is they take the easy way and stay in a rut. They do not study their jobs and like every one else who does thoughtless work, do the work poorly For instance, in a large boarding house, as in all such stablishments, one of the principal items of food is steaks and chops Their cost is high and the waste is large The landlady complains that she cannot make a living But she doesn't know how. Many of the guests are fond of fish in various forms, yet the menu seldom includes fish, and fish is cheap. On a single meal she could save from three to five dollars and please her guests immensely She might often substitute a stew for a steak, and accomplish the same results She might use cheaper cuts of meat made up into appetizing forms But she sticks to her chops and steaks and grumbles at the high cost of running a boarding house It's the high cost of ignorance that she ought to blame.

We have been charged, times without number, with being a nation of wasters This waste takes the form of household inefficiency more generally than any other form

More homes are wrecked from a financial point of view, from the waste of the kitchen, than any other cause It, as Doctor Wiley states, one-third is wasted thrift in food might be a very effective remedy for some of our present day domestic problems With meats costing 30 cents a pound, and half bone and fat, eggs at five cents each, butter 50 cents a pound, and other things in proportion, we must do some readjusting if we would keep pace with the procession You cannot increase your income half as easy as you can make it go farther. You need not do without porterhouse, but you can make it go a long way Learn the secret of French thrift, and find the secret of little economies in food values.

Your youngsters will relish a dish of home baked beans as much as a choice tenderloin They will grow fat on spaghetti They will have fewer stomach disorders on bread and molasses than on candy and soda and lobster salads. It's the appetite that counts—not what satisfies it. Go easy on the butter and take only as much as you can use Examine your garbage can to see if your high cost of living is not due to the high cost of thriftlessness, live better and save more Thrift is the panacea for man ills, and the high cost of living—yea, even the cost of living high can be considerably reduced by applying thrift to the little things about the house.

TALKS ON THRIFT

For the past few years one of the timely and important topics has been the high cost of living. Foodstuffs have been increasing in cost with a rapidity that has made readjustment necessary in many lines, and only as wages have kept pace with the increase in other things have we been able to keep our financial ships off the rocks. War conditions have not helped the matter, for in spite of our great prosperity the cost of living still mounts up.

As individuals we are in a large measure helpless to remedy the difficulty, for the causes are economic and beyond our control; but we can do much toward alleviating the resulting ills. We cannot all be teachers of domestic science, but we can all practice the art of good living. We can do some solid thinking and apply thrift principles to our kitchens and dining rooms and offset in a very large measure the added strain of high prices.

The trouble with many homekeepers is they take the easy way and stay in a rut. They do not study their jobs and like every one else who does thoughtless work, do the work poorly. For instance, in a large boarding house, as in all such stablishments, one of the principal items of food is steaks and chops. Their cost is high and the waste is large. The landlady complains that she cannot make a living. But she doesn't know how. Many of the guests are fond of fish in various forms, yet the menu seldom includes fish, and fish is cheap. On a single meal she could save from three to five dollars and please her guests immensely. She might often substitute a stew for a steak, and accomplish the same results. She might use cheaper cuts of meat made up into appetizing forms. But she sticks to her chops and steaks and grumbles at the high cost of running a boarding house. It's the high cost of ignorance that she ought to blame.

We have been charged, times without number, with being a nation of wasters. This waste takes the form of household inefficiency more generally than any other form.

More homes are wrecked from a financial point of view, from the waste of the kitchen, than any other cause. If, as Doctor Wiley states, one-third is wasted, thrift in food might be a very effective remedy for some of our present day domestic problems. With meats costing 30 cents a pound, and half bone and fat, eggs at five cents each, butter 50 cents a pound, and other things in proportion, we must do some readjusting if we would keep pace with the procession. You cannot increase your income half as easy as you can make it go farther. You need not do without porterhouse, but you can make it go a long way. Learn the secret of French thrift, and find the secret of little economies in food values.

Your youngsters will relish a dish of home baked beans as much as a choice tenderloin. They will grow fat on spaghetti. They will have fewer stomach disorders on bread and molasses than on candy and soda and lobster salads. It's the appetite that counts—not what satisfies it. Go easy on the butter and take only as much as you can use. Examine your garbage can to see if your high cost of living is not due to the high cost of thriftlessness, live better and save more. Thrift is the panacea for man ills, and the high cost of living—yea, even the cost of living high can be considerably reduced by applying thrift to the little things about the house.

M'DANIEL FREED ON CHARGE OF WIFE'S MURDER

Prosecuting Attorney Did Not Beat the Woman to Death in Home, Says Jury

Story of Official as to Fateful Events of Night Seem Borne Out by Evidence.

Defendant Candidate for Re-election, but is Defeated at the Polls, Nov. 7th.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 6.—Oscar D. McDaniel, prosecuting attorney of Buchanan county, acquitted of the murder of his wife, today was making plans to run down the real murderer.

"I have clews and descriptions which I believe will help me to catch the guilty person," he said. "My work on the case interrupted by my arrest, will be taken up where it was left off."

The jury was out one hour and 15 minutes.

Mrs. McDaniel was found dying with a crushed skull in the McDaniel home on the night of July 14 last. She did not regain consciousness and McDaniel was arrested several weeks later on circumstantial evidence.

Because of the prominence of McDaniel and his previous record as a fearless prosecutor, the case has attracted widespread attention.

Another almost unprecedented feature of the case is the fact that McDaniel, while still under indictment for murder by a grand jury was a candidate for re-election to the office of prosecuting attorney for Buchanan county, and after a strenuous campaign was defeated at the polls on November 7.

At 12:20 o'clock on the morning of July 15, 1916, McDaniel telephoned the police of St. Joseph that his wife had been terribly beaten in their home at 1806 South Twentieth street, St. Joseph. He said he had found her moaning and unconscious on the floor of her bedroom, with a deep gash in her head.

The coroner's autopsy later found the wound was 9 inches long and had been inflicted by a blunt instrument.

Mrs. McDaniel, accompanied by her husband, was taken to the Ensworth hospital, where she died at 8:30 a. m. McDaniel stayed with her until the end.

Mrs. McDaniel was 32 years old at the time of her death. The tragedy occurred on the eve of their daughter Helen's birthday and only a few days prior to the start of an intended trip to Boston, which McDaniel says he had planned to go with her.

Five minutes after the crime had been made known to the police the entire criminal machinery of St. Joseph was set in motion. A dastardly crime had been committed in the very household of the man whose activity against certain gangs of the citys' underworld had won for him the praise of many and the hatred of some.

Police, detectives and private agencies were employed immediately and the bloodhounds were set upon the trail. A hurried investigation of the house revealed that the dresser drawers in Mrs. McDaniel's room had been ransacked, two rings had been torn from her fingers and a revolver which she always kept in a bureau drawer was missing.

McDaniel said that on the night of July 14 he left home about 7 45 p. m. and visited the Odd Fellows lodge, remaining there about half an hour. From there he says he drove his automobile to 17th and Buchanan streets to keep an eye for a short time upon a "house" in that neighborhood which had been called to his attention as needing observation. According to his testimony he "slunk around" this house for nearly an hour; then continued by automobile to another point in the city to investigate a charge that a certain place was selling liquor without a license.

From this point, McDaniel testified, he went directly home, putting his automobile in the garage and proceeding to his bedroom to retire for the night at 11 30 p m.

Before he had completed his preparations for bed and while conversing with Mrs. McDaniel, he said, he received a telephone call from a man who said he was at the saloon of Hart and Blakesley, 8th and Messanie streets. The man impersonated a personal acquaintance, McDaniel said, and informed the prosecuting attorney that a brother of McDaniel was in the saloon drinking heavily.

Redressing, McDaniel said he told his wife about the telephone call and hurrying to the garage, took out the automobile and went to the saloon to get his brother He says he found no one at the saloon who admitted having called him, nor was his brother there. At the suggestion of the bartender, McDaniel said he visited another place. But this visit was equally futile

McDaniel decided the telephone call was a "fake" and returned home, arriving about 12 10 a m.

As he was alighting from his automobile directly in front of his home, McDaniel said, a shot was fired by some one behind a large tree just south of the garage. It was then, for the first time, that McDaniel associated the proceedings of the last few minutes with an anonymous letter received some days previous to the murder in which the author in very illiterate terms and printed lettering, declared that if McDaniel failed to set aside charges against a certain prisoner in the county jail, he and his family would be "blown to hell".

McDaniel said he crouched down behind the hood of his automobile when the first shot was fired, took out his own revolver, which he always carried while prosecuting attorney, and fired. McDaniel said he fired five times and that the assailant fired five, making it ten shots in all.

Fear for his family now took hold of McDaniel and he dashed into the house and to his wife's bedroom where he found her moaning and unconscious.

The blood hounds were first to reveal a possible clew. In the rear of McDaniel's home a basement window screen was found cut and the window open. The road to the McDaniel bedroom was clear, up the stairs through easily unlocked doors. The blood hounds were "nosed" at the basement window and the trail began They led a zigzag course through the backyard and through two miles of streets to a house on Eighth street, then they wandered up and down the corridors of this house and up and down an alley in the rear.

Eleven suspects were arrested in this house but a thorough investigation later led to nothing definite. Other suspects were arrested in the lower districts throughout the city, especially members of gangs

On the night of the murder a speeding automobile was caught sight of as it dashed out of town. A man saw it, became suspicious, impressed aid and gave chase But the mysterious car finally was lost near De Kalb, Mo.

So meager were the facts and so conflicting the testimony of various witnesses that at one hearing the coroner, baffled, cried out to the crowded courtroom for volunteer witnesses There were none. The court, owing to the nature of the case, and owing to the fact that McDaniel could hardly act as prosecuting attorney, appointed Bart M. Lockwood as special prosecutor

One bit of evidence offered by two witnesses at the inquest concerned a "scream" which it was testified came from the direction of the McDaniel home at about 10 10 p m. This was while McDaniel was out, according to his testimony, but before his second departure at 11:45 p m. Two witnesses heard the scream, they declared, and one added that the woman's scream was followed by a laugh Several witnesses said they heard the shots about midnight, but said there were but five shots

Another witness testified that he saw Mrs. McDaniel pass the window in her home after McDaniel had left the house at 11 30 This testimony was accepted as proving McDaniel's statement that his wife was all right when he left

The coroner's jury found that Mrs McDaniel came to her death through the injury inflicted by person or persons unknown.

M'DANIEL FREED ON CHARGE OF WIFE'S MURDER

Prosecuting Attorney Did Not Beat the Woman to Death in Home, Says Jury

Story of Official as to Fateful Events of Night Seem Borne Out by Evidence.

Defendant Candidate for Re-election, but is Defeated at the Polls, Nov. 7th.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 6.—Oscar D. McDaniel, prosecuting attorney of Buchanan county, acquitted of the murder of his wife, today was making plans to run down the real murderer.

"I have clews and descriptions which I believe will help me to catch the guilty person," he said. "My work on the case interrupted by my arrest, will be taken up where it was left off."

The jury was out one hour and 15 minutes.

Mrs. McDaniel was found dying with a crushed skull in the McDaniel home on the night of July 14 last. She did not regain consciousness and McDaniel was arrested several weeks later on circumstantial evidence.

Because of the prominence of McDaniel and his previous record as a fearless prosecutor, the case has attracted widespread attention.

Another almost unprecedented feature of the case is the fact that McDaniel, while still under indictment for murder by a grand jury was a candidate for re-election to the office of prosecuting attorney for Buchanan county, and after a strenuous campaign was defeated at the polls on November 7.

At 12:20 o'clock on the morning of July 15, 1916, McDaniel telephoned the police of St. Joseph that his wife had been terribly beaten in their home at 1806 South Twentieth street, St. Joseph. He said he had found her moaning and unconscious on the floor of her bedroom, with a deep gash in her head.

The cor[illegible]'s autopsy later found [illegible] 9 inches long and [illegible] The [illegible] been inflicted by a blunt instru[illegible] the re[illegible] were [illegible]

[illegible] McDaniel, accompanied by [illegible]sband, was taken to the Ens[illegible] hospital, where she died at [illegible] m. McDaniel stayed with [illegible] until the end.

Mrs. McDaniel was 32 years old at the time of her death. The tragedy occurred on the eve of their daughter Helen's birthday and only a few days prior to the start of an intended trip to Boston, which McDaniel says he had planned to go with her.

Five minutes after the crime had been made known to the police the entire criminal machinery of St. Joseph was set in motion. A dastardly crime had been committed in the very household of the man whose activity against certain gangs of the citys' underworld had won for him the praise of many and the hatred of some.

Police, detectives and private agencies were employed immediately and the bloodhounds were set upon the trail. A hurried investigation of the house revealed that the dresser drawers in Mrs. McDaniel's room had been ransacked, two rings had been torn from her fingers and a revolver which she always kept in a bureau drawer was missing.

McDaniel said that on the night of July 14 he left home about 7:45 p. m. and visited the Odd Fellows lodge, remaining there about half an hour. From there he says he drove his automobile to 17th and Buchanan streets to keep an eye for a short time upon a "house" in that neighborhood which had been called to his attention as needing observation. According to his testimony he "slunk around" this house for nearly an hour; then continued by automobile to another point in the city to investigate a charge that a certain place was selling liquor without a license.

From this point, McDaniel testified, he went directly home, putting his automobile in the garage and proceeding to his bedroom to retire for the night at 12:30 p. m.

Before he had completed his preparations for bed and while conversing with Mrs. McDaniel, he said, he received a telephone call from a man who said he was at the saloon of Hart and Blakesley, 8th and Messanie streets. The man impersonated a personal acquaintance, McDaniel said, and informed the prosecuting attorney that a brother of McDaniel was in the saloon drinking heavily.

Redressing, McDaniel said he told his wife about the telephone call and hurrying to the garage, took out the automobile and went to the saloon to get his brother. He says he found no one at the saloon who admitted having called him, nor was his brother there. At the suggestion of the bartender, McDaniel said he visited another place. But this visit was equally futile.

McDaniel decided the telephone call was a "fake" and returned home, arriving about 12:10 a. m.

As he was alighting from his automobile directly in front of his home, McDaniel said, a shot was fired by some one behind a large tree just south of the garage. It was then, for the first time, that McDaniel associated the proceedings of the last few minutes with an anonymous letter received some days previous to the murder in which the author in very illiterate terms and printed lettering, declared that if McDaniel failed to set aside charges against a certain prisoner in the county jail, he and his family would be "blown to hell".

McDaniel said he crouched down behind the hood of his automobile when the first shot was fired, took out his own revolver, which he always carried while prosecuting attorney, and fired. McDaniel said he fired five times and that the assailant fired five, making it ten shots in all.

Fear for his family now took hold of McDaniel and he dashed into the house and to his wife's bedroom where he found her moaning and unconscious.

The blood hounds were first to reveal a possible clew. In the rear of McDaniel's home a basement window screen was found cut and the window open. The road to the McDaniel bedroom was clear, up the stairs through easily unlocked doors. The blood hounds were "nosed" at the basement window and the trail began. They led a zigzag course through the backyard and through two miles of streets to a house on Eighth street, then they wandered up and down the corridors of this house and up and down an alley in the rear.

Eleven suspects were arrested in this house but a thorough investigation later led to nothing definite. Other suspects were arrested in the lower districts throughout the city, especially members of gangs.

On the night of the murder a speeding automobile was caught sight of as it dashed out of town. A man saw it, became suspicious, impressed aid and gave chase. But the mysterious car finally was lost near De Kalb, Mo.

So meager were the facts and so conflicting the testimony of various witnesses that at one hearing the coroner, baffled, cried out to the crowded courtroom for volunteer witnesses. There were none. The court, owing to the nature of the case, and owing to the fact that McDaniel could hardly act as prosecuting attorney, appointed Bart M. Lockwood as special prosecutor.

One bit of evidence offered by two witnesses at the inquest concerned a "scream" which it was testified came from the direction of the McDaniel home at about 10:10 p. m. This was while McDaniel was out, according to his testimony, but before his second departure at 11:45 p. m. Two witnesses heard the scream, they declared, and one added that the woman's scream was followed by a laugh. Several witnesses said they heard the shots about midnight, but said there were but five shots.

Another witness testified that he saw Mrs. McDaniel pass the window in her home after McDaniel had left the house at 11:30. This testimony was accepted as proving McDaniel's statement that his wife was all right when he left.

The coroner's jury found that Mrs. McDaniel came to her death through the injury inflicted by person or persons unknown.

Cleveland Doctor Uses Live Subject to Teach Important Lessons in Surgery.

Medical Men From Four Counties Enjoy Program and Big Dinner Follows.

Using a subject on which to work, and preparing the necessary bandages, working as he talked and teaching by precept, Dr. Charles Edwin Briggs, of Clevelan, associate professor of surgery, Western Reserve School of Medicine, addressed the district meeting of physicians, held at the Lima club last night. More than 100, many from adjoining counties, attended. Doctors were present from Auglaize, Putnam, Van Wert, and Mercer counties.

Dr. Briggs began his lecture at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. When he had finished with his patient at 6 o'clock, dinner was served in the dining room. Dr. William B. Van Note was in charge of the dinner arrangements.

Then followed illustrations and a lecture, as well as discussions of Dr. Briggs' topic, which was "Fractures and Dislocations." The visiting physicians departed for their homes on the late night interurban cars.

Dr. Briggs, who is a recognized authority in this field, gave an address of the utmost practical value to the physician who encounters these conditions in his daily practice. He is the first assistant visiting surgeon at Lakeside hospital, Cleveland.

The meeting was arranged by Dr. George V. Sheridan, of Columbus, executive secretary of the Ohio State Medical society. It was one of a series of post-graduate conferences, which are being held all over Ohio. The present plan is to bring post-graduate instruction within the reach of every physician and to make it possible for them to give their patients the benefit of the newest developments of scientific research.

Visiting physicians were guests of the Allen County Medical society, of which Dr. William Roush is president. The committee on entertainment consisted of Dr. C. E. Stadler, Dr. Harvey Basinger, Dr. E. J. Curtiss, Dr. Klor Parent and Dr. V. H. Hay.
